DEATH WINNING IN WAR HERO'S LAST BATTLE

Speechless, Unable to Take Nourishment, Says Doctor Of Military Leader.

PUT UNDER OXYGEN TENT

Physicians Preparing for Blood Transfusions in Move of Last Resort.

(By United Press)

TUCSON, Ariz.—The condition of Gen. John J. Pershing, who is near death from a heart ailment, was aggravated today when his kidneys ceased functioning.

Physicians attending the 77-year-old commander in chief of the American expeditionary forces during the World war said that he was no longer able to take food or water.

The power of speech also left the general.

Dr. Roland feared to leave the sick room this morning to give out his regular bulletin on Pershing's condition.

Gradually Weakening.

His handwritten statement, brought to newsmen by a nurse at 9 a. m. read:

"The general is gradually becoming weaker and is unable to talk or to take nourishment or to drink. The kidneys have ceased to function. Although he regained consciousness for brief intervals, for the greater part of the time since my last bulletin (3:45 a. m. EST) he has remained unconscious."

The general was placed under an oxygen tent at intervals, as his breathing became labored.

It was reported that preparations were being made for a blood transfusion.

"We are all impressed by the remarkable resistance shown by the general," said Frank Pershing, a nephew.

At midnight Dr. Davison stepped from the 77-year-old general's sick room and in a low, tired voice, made his first optimistic report in several hours.

The general had rallied slightly and partially regained consciousness.

Then, at 1:45 a. m., there was a setback.

Immediately, stimulants were administered and the doctors began their fight against the diurnal cycle, the hours between 2

Pick-Swinger Wins Praise At Opera On Opening Night

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— A young pick-swinger stepped from the wings of the Hippodrome theater last night and sang himself and his family out of squalor and poverty.

He was Jerry Cardinale, 23, former newsboy and WPA laborer and the oldest in a poverty-ridden family of nine-children, whose long dream seemed to have come true as the final curtain came down on the opera, "La Traviata." Some 4,000 stamping, shouting opera-goers applauded wildly.

Until a few weeks ago Cardinale was just another WPA ditch-digger. Since his father died, he has been the main support of his mother and his eight brothers and sisters. Then Alfredo Salmaggi, maestro of the Hippodrome opera, heard of him, gave him an audition, and hailed him a "find."

But Cardinale knew no complete role—merely a few arias, his mother had taught him. His voice was "wild" and needed much training, Salmaggi, undaunted, took him from his shabby home—a stuffy, overcrowded tenement over the pushcarts and elevated trains in Ninth Ave., for private and extensive tutoring.

Jerry was uncertain about the future.

"It all depends on the people," he said. "Yes, they seemed to like me, but I've got a lot of studying to do. I hope to sing here again soon."

IRONTON—(AP)—Chief of Police Dennis H. Callahan today ordered all bookmakers' establishments closed. Acting on orders from City Manager L. G. Howell, he gave bookies until Monday to dispose of all equipment.

France Joins In Move To Make a 'Deal'

Follows Trail Blazed by Britain for 'Realistic' Peace In Europe.

(By Associated Press)

France appeared today to be following the British-blazed trail to "realistic" settlement of major European rivalries.

Over the hill of new friendship between London and Rome—in the opinion of the "practical" school of diplomatic theory—lay a promised land of amity among Britain, Italy France and Germany.

Solution of British-Italian troubles was expected to lead to a British-German friendship agreement and then in turn to French-German and French-Italian appeasement.

The possibility of domestic opposition to British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's leadership in this new approach faded with Anthony Eden's self-effacement as the active leader of any opposition to the British-Italian deal at which he balked as foreign secretary.

The French chamber of deputies, debating its way toward a vote of confidence in Premier Camille Chautemps' government, was told by Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos that the government was willing to negotiate with Italy for recognition of the Italian conquest of Ethiopia "if present difficulties can be ironed out."

"No Arms Race."

With Europe on this new track toward peace, Japan's foreign Minister Koki Hirota disavowed any intention by Tokyo to engage in a naval building race and, in fact, he said, hoped to forestall such a contest of world powers.

The French foreign minister's suggestion of French-Italian settlement was accompanied by his explanation that the Chautemps cabinet was resolved to keep it obligations toward Czechoslovakia and to maintain the mutual assistance pact with the Soviet Union.

Delbos, speaking on the situation resulting from German encroachment on Austria, insisted that "Austrian independence is an essential element of European peace."

Austrian Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's declaration that Austrian independence was intact after his accord with Reichsfuehrer Hitler was splitting the nation more and more into Nazi and anti-Nazi camps. The dissension raised the possibility of a

NEW VACANCY?

Capital Hears Cardozo Won't Return to High Court.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Associate Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo is so ill that he probably never can return to his supreme court duties, it was learned today.

Ill for many weeks with a heart ailment, the justice recently suffered a stroke and his left side now is paralyzed. While his life is not immediately endangered, it was reported, his condition is such as to preclude any thought of resuming his seat on the bench.

The justice, who has never been robust, will be 68 years old in May. He was appointed to the supreme court in 1932 by President Hoover, after having served many years on the New York state court of appeals, the last five as chief judge.

DEATH TOLL 18

Cleveland's 1938 Figure Rises As Two More Die.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— This city's 1938 traffic toll today stood as 18 following the death of Carlos M. Clug and Adolph Carnecki. Forty-three were dead in traffic at this time last year.

Clug was fatally injured in an automobile accident and Carnecki died of injuries suffered in an accident Feb. 3.

SHOT BY SON

Kentuckian Dies As Boy Shoots During Quarrel.

NEWPORT, Ky.—(AP)—James H. Johnson, 41, died here early today from gunshot wounds inflicted, Patrolman Carl Austin said, by his 17-year-old son who "couldn't stand it" when he found his father quarreling with his mother, Jane, 37.

New Chief of British Foreign Office Amazingly Unlike Predecessor Eden

Halifax, of Yorkshire's Most Important Family, Conservative Type.

By CECIL CHARNWAY
(INS Staff Correspondent)

LONDON—The new chief of the British foreign office, the Rt. Hon. Sir Edward Frederick Lindley Wood, Baron Irwin, Viscount Halifax presents an amazing contrast to Capt. Anthony Eden, the man he succeeds.

Captain Eden, youthful man-of-action, captured the imagination of the British people by his handsome features, stylish dress, and by his flare for dramatic oratory.

Of Chamberlain Pattern.

Tall, reedy, gentle and devoutly Catholic, Halifax enjoys the full support of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain. Both are regarded as stiff conservatives. Both favor making trade agreements with Germany and Italy.

Coming from Yorkshire's most important family, the new chief of the foreign department was educated at Eton and Oxford, and entered parliament in 1910. In 1921 he was named undersecretary for the colonies and later he became viceroy of India. He caused a sensation in 1936 when he told his peers that the "era of German grievances must be closed."

Sent to Berlin.

It was not until three months ago that Halifax gained the public spotlight. Then, in connection with the Conservative party's policy of co-operation with Germany, he was sent by Chamberlain to Berlin to open negotiations with Hitler.

Secretary Eden, denouncing the trip, firmly stated his opposition toward dealings with "immoral" Fascistic nations. Recently, simultaneous with his resignation, Captain Eden reaffirmed his convictions regarding Hitler and Mussolini.

"If we are to have peace in these times, it means that in any agreements we make today there must be no sacrifice of principles and no shrinking of responsibilities merely to obtain quick results that may not be permanent," the embittered Eden spoke.

Viscount Halifax

Britons, while still loyal to the "liberalism" of the retiring secretary, know that as a compromiser his successor has no peer. They hope that he will bridge the gap created by Eden's resignation and stabilize the nation's foreign relations.

Escaped Bomb In India.

Halifax, at 57, has held the posts of president of the national board of education and minister of agriculture in addition to his colonial duties. While in India he escaped miraculously when a native threw a bomb under his train.

A keen huntsman, he was originally invited to Berlin by Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, to inspect a Nazi hunting exhibition. While the whole world awaited with anxiety news of his chat with Hitler, he insisted on describing the mission as "a hunting and exploring trip."

After conferring with Hitler, Goering and Goebbels, Halifax returned to London, where reporters were not surprised to hear him say, "Now that the door has been opened, it will remain open."

SNOW BLANKETS CITY AND STATE

Winter Returns, Leaves Roads Hazardous; Rain or Snow Forecast for Tonight.

Winter had returned to Mansfield today as a blanket of snow from one to four inches deep covered the state, making highways hazardous for auto driving.

The snow, which started falling during the night, continued until mid-morning although the total precipitation here was measured at only one-half inch.

The state highway department reported all roads in the state open although it described most thoroughfares as "slippery. The state highway patrol said it was necessary to sand the sharper curves.

Fog and rain were reported from other sections of the state, especially near Dayton and Cincinnati, while snowplows were called out to clear the highways at Findlay and near Massillon.

At noon the temperature was slightly above freezing point in Mansfield although in the last 24 hours it had dropped to 24 degrees. The highest temperature yesterday was 28. The average for the past 13 years was 35.

Light rain or snow is predicted for tonight, with clear skies tomorrow and little change in temperature.

GETS DIVORCE

Mrs. Nunnally Johnson, Wife Of Writer, Awarded $25,000.

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Charging cruelty, Mrs. Nunnally Johnson, wife of the noted fiction writer, today had secured a divorce.

Mrs. Johnson, who married the writer in 1927, was granted custody of their five-year-old daughter, Nora, and under a property settlement was awarded $25,000 in cash and $150 weekly alimony.

EX-ARMY OFFICER DIES

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Maj. Gen. Fred T. Austin, U. S. A., retired, died at Walter Reed general hospital here this morning. Gen. Austin is survived by his widow, Lenore H. Austin, who resided with him here.

Juvenile 'Gang' at Ontario Confesses Two Burglaries

Four Boys, One 7 Years Old, Paroled to Parents After Admitting They Took $150 In Loot.

Four members of a juvenile "gang" at Ontario, one a seven-year-old boy, were paroled to their parents yesterday by Probate Judge C. J. Anderson until he returns from a two-week vacation trip to Florida, after the boys admitted burglarizing a home and a drug concern of loot valued at $150.

The boys, all grade pupils in the Springfield township school, were taken into custody at the school yesterday by Sheriff E. P. Long and Ralph Carroll, county juvenile officer. Two of the youths are brothers, one 12 and the other 13 years old.

Loot Found In Home.

The admitted "leader" of the gang, in whose home most of the loot was found, is 13. He had been in juvenile court five years ago on a theft charge and at that time was returned to his parents.

Members of the "gang" were rounded up after the youngest of the group was caught as he entered the home of B. C. Summerville near Ontario where most of the articles were stolen. The seven-year-old boy implicated the leader of the group and set county authorities on the trail of the other two boys.

The boys told juvenile authorities they entered the Summerville home Tuesday afternoon through an unlocked back door and ransacked the house. Their loot, all of which was recovered yesterday at the boys' homes, included six rings, a small revolver, binoculars, a flashlight, and two fountain pens.

GUNMAN SLAIN

Killed By Police Posse as He Tries to Elude Capture.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va.—(AP)—A 13-day search for a red-haired bandit was ended today with the death of Russell "Red" Lemaster, 27.

Lemaster died of shotgun slugs last night as he attempted to evade a police cordon which had been seeking him for three hours after a filling station robbery.

Sergeant Myron Neale said the bandit was gripping a revolver when his body was searched. A small amount of money and two half-pints of whiskey were found on him, Neale said.

William Hesson, 26, arrested early this week, was quoted by acting Lieut. Otis Harrison as admitting a series of auto thefts and burglaries and naming Lemaster as his companion.

Gold Mine in This Job, 'Davey' Sings To 'Sawyer' in Ohio's Gridiron Show

Capital's Newsmen Poke Fun at Governor, State Dem Chairman.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Gov. Martin L. Davey and Ohio's Democratic National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, expected opponents for the gubernatorial nomination in the August primary who smilingly posed together for photographers at a Cincinnati banquet recently, got together again last night and embraced warmly—but this time only as represented by a skit.

It was all part of "The Hot Mix Follies of 1938," label for the Columbus Press club's annual gridiron show at which the capital's newspapermen loosed barbed shafts at state officials and politics.

Sawyer, an announced candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, and the governor, who has not yet stated his future plans, both were invited guests but were not present.

Davey sent his greetings and the Press club's "governor" sang to "Sawyer":

"There's a gold mine in this job, I must say,
"You may have it Charles, my pal, some sweet day.
"There'll be clover just for you down the line—
"You may have it when I'm through, pal of mine—

COUNTY RELIEF COSTS SOAR TO ALL-TIME HIGH

Commissioners Call Situation 'Critical' as February's Expenses Hit $25,000.

TOTAL DEBT NOW $35,000

Board to Visit Other Counties In Search for Solution; Fund Exhausted.

With Richland county relief costs threatening to set an all-time high of $25,000 this month, the county commissioners today described the relief situation as "critical" and admitted they were "up against it" for a solution.

"There's no need to fool ourselves any longer," C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said. "Relief costs and debts are running higher every month, and we don't know how we're going to meet the emergency with the funds provided under this set-up."

Scouting Trip Arranged.

In a move to find an answer to the problem, Mitchel said the commissioners would go on a "scouting trip" through central Ohio early next week to learn how the costs are being met by other counties.

"We are told that Licking county relief oficials have set up a successful plan for their own which keeps expenditures within their budget, and we intend to find out more about it in particular," Mitchell added. He said he knew nothing of the outline of the plan.

He indicated the commissioners probably would visit counties to the south and east of Mansfield, leaving here Monday or Tuesday.

Old Bills Unpaid.

Half of the county's $20,000 bills for January are still unpaid, and by March 1 the county's relief debt will amoun to around $35,000, Deputy Auditor Authur S. Beck said.

The county's relief fund is exhausted, and only $5,500 is available within the next month for paying the bills, Beck pointed out. That amount will come from the state under the $6,500,000 relief program set up recently by the legislature.

In order to obtain the monthly allocation, the county had to put up half the amount for matching over a six-months period.

Mitchell held little hope for

DEATH MYSTERY

Young Woman Found Dead of Gas Fumes in Reno.

RENO, Nevada —(INS)— Mystery today surrounded the suicide of an attractive young woman found in a gas filled apartment room.

Police said she was about 25 years of age. She had plugged all keyholes and cracks in the room and had burned all papers which may have identified her, before turning on the gas.

Officers said they learned the apartment had been rented February 15 to Frederick A. Kelso, of Seattle, who presumably left for Seattle yesterday or the day before, after informing his attorney, Maurice Sullivan, he had received a telegram stating that his mother was seriously ill in Washington.

Officers said they checked telegraph offices and were convinced Kelso had received no telegram in the past few days

Eleanore Settles With Dad

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Financial difficulties between Allen Whitney and his movie dancing daughter, Eleanore Whitney, 20, have been amicably adjusted, she said today, and he will dismiss his suit against her for $25 a week allowance.

The actress said she was out of town when the suit was filed and "it was all a misunderstanding." She did not disclose terms of their agreement.

The Whitneys have been divorced and Eleanore has supported her mother and her sister, Ruth, 17, since she became a stage dancer at the age of 10.

BOARD REFUSES TO ORDER RURAL VACCINATIONS

County School Heads Suggest Each Township and Village Group Take Own Action.

Refusing to order compulsory vaccination of county school pupils against smallpox, the county board of education today recommended that each township and village board take its own action on the vaccination issue.

The board met at the county superintendent's office in the courthouse in a session which lasted an hour.

Opposition in rural sections to the compulsory vaccination plan which was adopted five days ago by the Mansfield board of education led the county board to drop the issue into the laps of the local boards.

O. K. With Superintendent.

County Superintendent Boyd Robinson said the board's recommendation was satisfactory to him, since he intended to submit the vaccination proposal to the village and township boards regardless of the county group's decision.

"We have had trouble convincing some of the districts out in the county that there is a smallpox epidemic," Robinson said," and it is in those sections that most of the opposition to compulsory immunization originated."

He added that compulsory vaccination already had been ordered in Madison township and Lexington where several cases of smallpox have appeared.

"In those districts the pupils either were vaccinated or kept out of school," he said. "The majority of the pupils in the rural schools have been vaccinated."

Most of the opposition in the county board came from C. G. Tugend, Worthington township, who argued that there was little need to have pupils vaccinated against their will when public meetings are continued during an epidemic such as the county and city have just experienced.

OPENS BOOSTER MONTH TONIGHT

'Y' Begins Annual Observance With Public Dance.

A public dance at 8 p. m. today in the gymnasium at the Y. M. C. A., sponsored by the Sophomore Hi-Y club, will open the annual Booster and Visitors month observance at the "Y."

The observance will continue through the month of March, and will include a number of special events, including the annual Y M C A. circus, a city table tennis tournament, district Hi-Y conference, a father and son banquet, a city handball tournament, and donkey basketball games.

The city table tennis tournament next Thursday night will be the second event.

JUMBOS 'SUFFER'

One Catches Cold, Gets Whisky, Now 39 Others Cough.

ROCHESTER, Ind. —(AP)— There was an epidemic of colds —and a lot of dissatisfaction— among 40 elephants at a circus here today.

Sally, largest of the herd, developed a cough yesterday. A veterinarian prescribed three pints of whisky in a bucket of water.

Today, keepers, said, all the other elephants were coughing.

25 ESCAPE INJURY

PONTIAC, Mich.—(INS)— Twenty-five persons escaped injury early today when all seven cars of a speeding grand trunk passenger train left the tracks in Davisburg village, 16 miles northwest of Pontiac.

Eleanore Settles With Dad

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Financial difficulties between Allen Whitney and his movie dancing daughter, Eleanore Whitney, 20, have been amicably adjusted, she said today, and he will dismiss his suit against her for $25 a week allowance.

SENATE GRAFT HUNTERS END PROBE MONDAY

Storage Contract Granted to 'Pete' Stinchcomb, Ex-Grid Star, Under Scrutiny.

STUDY 'PREFERRED LIST'

Told Myrna Smith's Card Index File Classified All of State's Employes.

COLUMBUS — The Ohio senate's graft investigators today studied books and records of a liquor warehousing company to learn more about a contract awarded to Gaylord R. "Pete" Stinchcomb former Ohio State All-American football player.

Although nursing an inflamed eye, suffered in a fight with Warwick I. Rowland, Columbus attorney, during yesterday's hearing, Chairman J. Ralph Seidner of the senate committee today speeded the committee's work toward completion. The committee's investigation will end Monday unless the legislature extends its sine die adjournment date.

Holds Contract Cancelled.

The committee had evidence that the state liquor department cancelled a warehousing contract with the Cincinnati Terminal Warehouse and gave it to the Franklin Warehousing company, Stinchcomb's firm.

Subpoenas were issued for the Franklin company's books and records.

Evidence that Mrs. Myrna Smith, executive secretary to Gov. Martin L. Davey, kept a card index of all state employes, indicating them either for promotion or dismissal and noting any political leanings, was before the committee today.

State employes testified that Mrs. Smith wrote on these cards such notations as:

"He is a very good worker for the Democratic party—give him a small raise."

"She is a civil service employe. Work her to death and get rid of her."

"She is a sweetheart of so-and-so. Get rid of her."

"He is a close friend of the Democratic chairman."

The committee intends to subpoena the card-index file if the legislature extends its investigation.

Clerks Testify.

Dorothy Rainey, employed in the state finance department, and Dorothy Curtis, clerk in the governor's office, testified that Mrs. Smith made the notations on the employe cards. Mrs. Olive Tannehill, secretary in the governor's office, said she had seen some of

DOWN 30 PLANES

Japs Report Destruction of Russian, U. S.-Made Crafts.

SHANGHAI—(U.P.)—A Japanese communique said today that 30 Russian and American made warplanes had been shot down in a gigantic air battle over Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province.

Chinese reported that Russian pilots with their forces shot down eight Japanese craft in the fight which involved 100 planes. Nothing was said regarding Chinese losses, but the Chinese also claimed a "great victory."

Fearing further attacks on the island of Formosa, off the east coast of China, the Japanese command ordered two destroyer flotillas to return to Japan to be equipped with additional anti-aircraft guns the Chinese asserted.

A raid was conducted by 29 Japanese planes against Wuchow, far to the south in Kwangsi province, in the belief that the city served as a base for large numbers of Chinese pursuit planes. Little damage was reported despite an intensive bombardment.

SEES PRELATE

Cleveland Bishop Granted Audience With Pope at Vatican.

VATICAN CITY — (AP) — Pope Pius XI today gave an audience to Bishop James McFadden of Cleveland, O.

In response to queries later as to whether his visit concerned the proposed creation of a Youngstown diocese, separate from Cleveland, Bishop McFadden said there were no developments, although the split had been talked of for 40 years.

COLONIAL PROGRAM, TEA GIVEN BY CLUB

Cosmopolitan Members Entertained at Home of Mrs. W. B. Osborn; Mrs. Conard, Mrs. Hanson Talk on Silver, Women of Period.

TEA and a colonial program were the order of the day Friday when members of the Cosmopolitan club were entertained at the home of Mrs. W. B. Osborn. Mrs. J. B. Conard and Mrs. F. L. Hanson appeared on the program.

The paper given by Mrs. Conard was "Early American Silver." In her talk Mrs. Conard discussed the Paul Revere period which lasted from 1752 to 1812. Three generations of Revere men were silversmiths. The speaker also showed various teapot designs and spoke of Jeremiah Drummer and Jacob Hurd, both well known smiths.

She described the process and told how it takes approximately seven years to learn the craft. In conclusion Mrs. Conard spoke of the ecclesiastical silver used in the early American churches and exhibited some pieces she had made.

Mrs. Hanson spoke of "Dames and Daughters of Colonial Days." In this paper Mrs. Hanson attempted to point out some of the interesting facts about less famous women of the period. She told about Madame Sarah Knight who was the first woman to make the trip by horseback from Boston to New York. She also described the colonial life and the taverns of the period.

Other women of whom she spoke were Margaret Brent, an outstanding business woman who sought feminine rights, and Ann Hutchinson, who was banished from the Hudson Bay colony for her agitation for freedom of thought and expression Betsy Schuyler was cited as an example of the typical young woman.

Tea was served at a table decorated with purple violets and lighted tapers. Mrs. E. R. Kochheiser, president, poured. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. W. T. Marquis, Mrs. A. D. McKenzie and Mrs. H. H. Shaw. Guests of the organization were Miss Amalia Hewitt, Germany, and Miss Emily Brown.

The next meeting will be March 11 at the Women's club with Mrs. C. V. McConnell as hostess.

Esther Class Has Meeting At Home Of Mrs. Cowger

At the regular meeting of the Esther class of the Mayflower Congregational church last night at the home of Mrs. Elmer Cowger, 56 Buckingham street, there were 20 members and four guests present. The guests were Rev. C. E. Beatty, the Misses Joan and Joyce Cowger and Miss Mildred Beatty. Mrs. Peter Hoffman was associate hostess.

Devotions were read by Mrs. S. F. Rosen and Mrs. Carl Stough, president, was in charge of the business meeting. A paper was prepared by Nellie Scott on the Bible study and was read by Mrs. Mary Dinges. Members of the Madison High school quartet entertained and Rev. Beatty gave a recitation and offered guitar solos.

Miss Joan Cowger also gave a recitation and a song written by Mrs. Cowger was sung by the group. The contest prize was won by Mrs. Mark Southward. The next meeting will be March 18 at the home of Mrs. Carl Bistline, 33 Elmwood drive. Mrs Lyle Ish and Miss Grace Finical will be associate hostesses.

Newman School Club Has Birthday Party

A party in honor of all members who have a birthday in February was given by the Newman School Mother's club at the home of Mrs. D. M. Weaver, 23 Wayne street, yesterday. There were 30 members and two guests, Mrs. George Reichert and Mrs. Harry Scott, present.

Bingo was played and the prizes were awarded to Mrs. William Isaman, Mrs. Karl Kalstein, and Mrs. Steven Konves. Group singing was also enjoyed. Hostesses for the affair were Mrs. Weaver, Mrs. Thomas Pike, Mrs. Delmer Scott, Miss Hazel Painter and Mrs. F. W. Gross. The next meeting will be March 9 at the school.

MISSIONARY GROUP ENTERTAINS FRIDAY

Central Methodist Episcopal Church Society Gives Luncheon; Guests From Mansfield Sorosis Appear on Program.

THE Foreign Missionary society of the Central Methodist Episcopal church gave a membership luncheon yesterday for all the women of the church for which Mrs. E. C. Jenkins, president, was general chairman. Mrs. C. W. Shultz, membership chairman, presented the names of all new members of the organization.

Program arrangements were made by Mrs. O. L. Henderson, who presented Mrs. William Bishop, Mrs. Roy McGinty and Mrs. Fred Troll in vocal selections accompanied by Mrs. W. E. Wygant. The trio and Mrs. Wygant were all guests from the Mansfield Sorosis.

Miss Thelma Slack, head of the dramatic department of Ashland college, gave a reading, "Dorcas," by Myra Brooks Welch. Mrs. Corson Brower and Mrs. Emily Smith accompanied by Mrs. Louis Rahn gave two duet selections.

The luncheon table was decorated with the society's colors of blue and gold. A centerpiece of calendulas was used and yellow and blue tapers lighted the table. Mixed bouquets were arranged on the tables and around the assembly room.

Miss Hamman Hostess To First M. E. Group

The King's Heralds and Home Missionary society of the First Methodist church met at the home of their president, Betty Hamman, West Fifth street, Thursday. Margaret Boling read the devotions followed by the reading of the topic from the study book by Mildred Rice. Betty Flegal and Mary Margaret Young gave several readings. Contest prizes were awarded to Janice Kempf and Mildred Rice.

During the business meeting a candy sale was planned for March 3, and a tea for the mothers of members was arranged for May 8. The next meeting will be a covered-dish dinner at the church March 18.

Plan Charity Work at Priscillian Meeting

Mrs R. A. Glessner was hostess yesterday at the luncheon meeting of the Priscillian club at the Towne House. There were four guests present for the meeting, Mrs. Frank Bloor, Mrs. Harold Mansfield, Mrs. Linna Mae Decker, and Mrs Paul A. Williams.

Business of the day consisted of plans for the aiding of poor families. A social hour followed. The next meeting will be March 11 at the Towne House with Mrs. L. G. Palmer as hostess.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1938.

Drive carefully tomorrow—do your share in increasing highway safety.

Even the suggested possibility of getting into war with Japan over some Alaskan salmon sounds rather fishy.

Word comes of an upstate New York woman who yawned 9,000 times in five days—but she just wouldn't turn off the radio.

"Let's Look Around."

WHILE some are so situated as to travel in foreign countries and are attracted to more distant places, it may be doubted if the leisure available to any considerable number of persons is sufficient to allow for more than rather hurried travel through our own country, which, after all, possesses such widely varied attractions as to satisfy any ordinary requirements for change of scene and enjoyment of new experiences.

"See America First" is more than a mere slogan—it is intended to expand individual understanding of the great expanse of this country, from east to west and from north to south, and to bring to Americans a keener realization of the marvelous progress that has been made—and is still being made—by the people of this comparatively young nation.

There is danger sometimes of developing a too-localized viewpoint, of over-emphasizing relatively unimportant things and of failing to appreciate the relationship of community, county and state with the country as a whole.

The automobile has broadened the horizon of millions of Americans who no longer find themselves tied to home surroundings. A trip involving several thousand miles has become commonplace, with the added advantage of making it possible to visit places of historic interest and to stop in any city or little town that seems interesting or that looks as if it might have a "story."

Just at the moment it appears to be a good idea to get in the car and start out for a look around.

No Place for Favoritism.

EVIDENCE of further public awakening to the importance of observing and enforcing traffic regulations is seen in the steadily increasing number of civic, social and fraternal organizations that are joining in the movement to reduce highway hazards.

It is gratifying to note, for instance, that the 1,400 Elk lodges in the United States are now sponsoring a safety campaign which is intended to reach into all parts of the country.

In an address in Columbus this week, Major Charles Spencer Hart, of New York, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, flayed motorists who attempt to use influence in "fixing" tickets for themselves or their friends.

He termed this practice "unsportsmanlike and a mockery of justice." It is not fair to police officials, he said, to go behind their backs and, through political pressure, kill a ticket which has been merited by the driver and given by the officer in an honest effort to protect society.

It is not unlikely that every city—including Mansfield—has a few citizens who, on account of their prominence or position, regard themselves as immune to punishment for violation of parking rules or other traffic violations.

If there is any person who, through the use of influence or political or personal "pull" can avoid a just penalty for a traffic violation, then there is no fairness in imposing a penalty on anyone for a similar violation.

When motorists who are regarded as prominent and influential reach a point of realizing that—in the interests of public safety—THEY SHOULDN'T EVEN ASK FOR SPECIAL PRIVILEGES the entire problem will be nearer solution.

The Gospel of Brotherhood.

WHERE else in the world is a country that observes "Brotherhood Week" with radio speeches by Catholic, Protestant and Jewish leaders? That the United States still affords this example of racial and religious tolerance is something for which thoughtful Americans are profoundly thankful.

A Protestant minister, Jewish rabbi and Catholic priest who spoke on one of the week's programs stressed the "brotherhood of our fellow men," the "perils of intolerance" and "civilization's dependence upon human freedom."

The intolerants who attack those of a different faith or race endanger their own freedom and retard the progress of their own civilization. Any advantages they seem to gain are only temporary and at tremendous cost to their own intelligence and their own souls.

Humankind has a big enough task on its hands to achieve its highest development and its greatest good without wasting energy in mutual persecution and destruction.

Threat to Democracy.

EDOUARD DALADIER, defense minister of France, told his political associates the other day that adequate defense for France depended on ending social unrest. "Only an increase in our production, maintenance of order and respect for law, conciliation of interests and their submission to the general interest will permit us to maintain and reinforce our alliances and friendships."

A similar idea was expressed in the broadcast speech of Secretary of Interior Ickes to Great Britain. The greatest threat to democracy there and in the United States, he said, lies in a system which does not provide economic security for the masses.

There is truth in these statements. Democracy, we believe, offers a more satisfactory way of life than nazism, fascism, or communism. It can be seriously endangered only from within, when it does not live up to its own possibilities and promise of freedom, justice and opportunity.

Farmers who have not yet been reached by modern conveniences will probably know just what to do with their copy of that 121-page farm bill.

Master tailors are again proclaiming that the well-dressed man has 22 suits—so the competition can be resumed.

McIntyre's New York Glimpses

—By O. O. McINTYRE

NOTHING ever startled most of us into those goofily questioning gazes, such as distinguish ZaSu Pitts and Ed Wynn, like the ladies' hats recently. The decades revealed queer millinery, but never has the art gone on such a cock-eyed binge. Anything goes!

In one block we turn to see something that suggests a step-ladder reaching for the moon and discover it is Lillian Gish wearing something by Suzy. A little further along we may bump into lovely Lynn Fontanne with a misplaced pen-wiper dangling over a left eye.

We laugh, ho, ho, at fashion's modern furbelows. Yet I wonder if any feminine head-dress is more outrageously hilarious than the old-fashioned sun-bonnet, which we have sentimentalized in song, story and poem until it seems almost a pretty thing.

Seeing a face inside a sunbonnet was like peeking into a tunnel. Yet Sunbonnet Sues swinging on the garden gate are a part of our sentimental lore. Today they are a bit funny, but not half as comical as the hats seen about The Colony at lunch time will be 20 years from now.

The change is mourning millinery, too, is worth a paragraphic twirl. Yesterday, for instance, I came upon a young woman recently bereaved. Her husband's passing ended a happy romance. Yet there was, sensibly enough, nothing in her dress and manner suggesting sorrow. One could not help but recall the good widows of other days. The tight-fitting black bonnet with mourning veil to heels, cumbersome, macabre, depressing. Often the only relief the rest of their lives was a touch of white edging to collars and cuffs after 20 years or so of epitomizing grief.

That reminds me that outside Joe Laurie, Jr. one never sees a cap save on the golf course or shipboard. Or perhaps Damon Runyon at the races. The gangster films knocked them into what might be called, paradoxically enough, a "cocked hat." The cap suggests talk out of the side of the mouth and that classic of underworld vulgate: "What do you hear from the mob?" Caps—ps-s-st. like that!—went the way of the walking stick. There should be a revival.

But the most amusing style contraption of yesteryear was the steel-spring do-hickey that was slipped under the coat collars to keep them just so. Freddie Cromley came home from Marietta College with one and Harry Frank's Sons, local clothiers had a run on them until the white edging for vests was introduced by a city chap from Indianapolis who came there to organize a street railway concern. Then the raglan. The ultimate syllable in hanky-panky was the light tan cravanette rain coat with raglan sleeve. It was none other than Al Jolson who introduced it to our young bloods the year he appeared there as an end man with Al G. Fields. Or maybe it was with Neil O'Brien or Lasses White.

There was no civilizing influence of the movies and radios in those days and we got the drift of the latest sartorial capers from the touring theatrical companies or the drummers who registered from New York at the Park Central.

Out of a lengthy past of indulging in and watching from side lines changing styles for men only one strikes me worth preserving. That is the stock. Neatly adjusted almost anyone can look smart wearing one. It has no concern for years. William Faversham in his 70s looks as spruce in one as young Noel Coward—both of whom are pronounced exponents. Also nothing so expertly satisfies masculine craving for color without giving appearance of gaudiness. Oh, yes, it is also peachy for hiding the soiled shirt.

A HOT HOUSE PLANT THAT ONCE GREW WILD

Talk In Billions About Super-Highway Plans

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Three proposals are before congress for the construction of a highway system which will lay a network of north and south and east and west highways over the United States.

One bill, by Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio, proposes three east and west and not to exceed seven north and south.

There is nothing in Senator Bulkley's bill to indicate, except by inference, where these future roads will be situated.

Considering that the senator proposes to make them a part of a national defense plan, it is clear that they will touch or be adjacent to important population centers.

300 FEET WIDE

The Bulkley bill stipulates 300 feet as the width of the proposed highways, with from four to 12 one-way traffic lanes.

At each side of the road proper strips of land "not exceeding 550 feet in width" shall be acquired by purchase or condemnation. (The president has been quoted as favoring strips one mile in width.)

The financing plan provides for capital stock to the extent of $100,000,000 and the sale of bonds, bearing interest at the rate not to exceed 3 per cent, to a total of $2,000,000.

They will mature within not more than 60 years.

ANOTHER BILL

A bill almost identical with Senator Bulkley's, has been introduced in the house by Representative H. B. Steagall, Alabama.

Representative J. B. Snyder, Pennsylvania, also introduced a bill providing for three east and west highways and six north and south to be located as follows:

From Boston to Salem, Ore., by way of Albany, N. Y., Cleveland, O., Chicago, Ill., Rapid City, S. D., Yellowstone National park and Council Bluffs, Ia.

From Baltimore, Md., to San Francisco, Cal., by way of Cumberland Md. Uniontown, Pa., Wheeling, W. Va., Indianapolis, Ind., Springfield, Ill., Phillipsburg, Mo., Denver Col., Huntington, Ut., Duckwater, Nev., and Yosemite National park.

From St. Petersburg, Fla., to Los Angeles, Cal., by way of Mobile, Ala., Baton Rouge La., San Antonio, Tex., El Paso, Tex.

North and south highways: One from Fort Myers, Fla., to Augusta, Me. by way of St. Petersburg, Fla., Reidsville, La., Columbia, S. C., Raleigh, N. C., Richmond, Va.

Between Washington, D. C., and Baltimore, Md., New Brunswick, N. J., Hartford, Conn., and Concord, N. H.

From Buffalo, N. Y., to Pensacola, Fla., by way of Pittsburgh, Pa., Uniontown, Pa., Charlestown, W. Va., Jonesboro, Tenn., and Atlanta, Ga.

From Baton Rouge, La., to Chicago, Ill., by way of Jackson, Miss., and Memphis, Tenn., from San Antonio, Tex., to Bismarck, N. D., by way of Hobart, Okla., Ness City, Kas., Broken Bow, Neb., and Pierre, S. D.

From El Paso, Tex., to Phillipsburg, Mont., by way of El Morro National Monument and Salt Lake City, Ut.

From San Diego, Cal., to Seattle, Wash., by way of Los Angeles, Cal., Bakersfield, Cal., Sacramento, Cal., and Klamath Falls, Ore.

THIRD BILL

The Snyder bill provides for an appropriation of $8,000,000,000, and it contains no provision, such as is found in the other two, for self-liquidation by means of tolls and rentals of property or buildings along the right of way.

Listen, World!

She Laughed.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHE LAUGHED. Have you seen a breeze go twisting, twinkling over a field of flowers? Laughter swept like that over her tip-tilted face . . . dancing, dimpling . . . rippling through her glinting golden curls . . . rounding the soft whiteness of her throat.

Just a pretty, care-free youngster laughing. But there was some special quality in Virginia Carlyle's laugh. A cheerier chuckle . . . a more impudent lilt. You couldn't resist that laugh . . . couldn't, for the life of you, stay sullen or fearful in the face of it.

Always it had been like that. Even as a little tyke. But more particularly through High School and College years. Hardly seemed fair for any one girl to have so much beauty and wit, adoring family and friends, and that bewitching laugh that capped it all. That laugh that nothing could down.

There must have been envious ones who sneered. Sour ones who said she'd come to no good end . . . "a giddy young chit like that, laughing her days away." But if there were, they never cramped her style . . . nor checked, for a second, the popularity that ringed her round . . . made her the best-beloved and the most desired "date" of the class of '32. Never a merrier young rascal queened it over the campus "Sir-kus" . . . or walked demurely, her starry eyes framed in traditional cap and gown.

Gay Virginia Carlyle — with a corner on all the fun!

The girl that had every thing . . . the girl for whom life was "just one long laugh."

"Just one long laugh." Not until yesterday did those who loved her best know what the laugh had cost. Nor, until yesterday, did that long, disconsolate line of swains, who had courted her in vain, know why she had danced and played with all—but married none.

Not until yesterday, when she lay slender and still in her shroud—but with laughter yet warm on her lips.

Then it could be told, even to those nearest and dearest who had never dreamed what lay behind that radiant smile.

She had laughed—yes. Laughed, without ceasing, through Youth's brief, sweet years. But there was something more than careless gaiety behind that laugh. It was, instead, the bravest mask a young soul ever wore.

For through it all, gay Virginia Carlyle of Berkeley, California, had known she was doomed to go of that cruelest and most hopeless disease—leukemia. The creeping death that, slow second by second, drains life from the blood . . . and strength from the flesh . . . and courage from the heart.

THIS SHE HAD KNOWN, ALL ALONG—AND NEVER TOLD!

What she had suffered — so young, so new to pain—in the doctor's office, on the day he told her, no one can ever know. But whatever passed in that hour—her lips were sealed with laughter when she came out again! Sealed even against those who shared her name.

And so, for the time that was left, she went on laughing. Making no ties that would, later, break a heart. Leaving no fear-crazed memories to haunt those she must leave.

Just dancing through the days—Wearing bright laughter as a token in her long, grim joust with death.

And laughing—passed . . . Great-hearted, gallant, to the last.

Georgia Abolishes Chain Gangs.

Georgia has at last abolished her notorious chain-gangs. Legislative reforms which outlaw this barbarous feature of that state's antiquated penal system are going into effect this week.

The chain-gang never belonged in the 20th century, or for that matter in the 19th. It was a blood brother of the galley-slave of the Romans, the sadistic cruelties of the Spanish Inquisition, the ducking stool, stocks and whipping post of England and colonial America. It was based on the mistaken idea that personal punishment rather than the protection of society was the primary motive for restraining lawbreakers.

Georgia is to be congratulated. She has remedied a condition which made her prison methods a reproach to the name of an otherwise forward-looking American commonwealth.—Columbus Dispatch.

What One Man Thinks

—By DAVID GIBSON

Public opinion begins with two neighbors agreeing.

Every sixth person in New York City is now on relief.

The old-time old man that used to snap the lid of his watch during a long sermon in church, now snaps the lid of his spectacle-case during a long speech at a lunch club or political meeting.

WESTERN, youthful states are showing more economic progress than older, eastern states—they are a social example to the latter.

Western states are seeking eastern capital and population—giving inducement to gain it, and we must meet their competition to retain what we now have.

Here is a quotation from a full-page advertisement signed by the Associated Industries of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb., and appearing recently in quite a number of dailies and a national weekly:

"Nebraska alone has no income tax, no sales tax, no luxury tax.

"Its debt-free state government levies nothing to pay interest on bonds, because Nebraska's State Constitution prohibits State Bonds.

"Every other state has one or more levies not found in Nebraska; taxes that increase the cost of living, place excessive burden upon agriculture, labor and industry.

"Thirty-seven states now collect some form of income tax. Nebraska does not. The policy of Nebraska is: 'No New Forms of Taxation!'

"Thrifty Nebraska pays as it goes, limiting a modest property levy to the ability of people to pay for proven needs . . . Encouraged by this fair tax policy, Industry Can Grow!"

China.

THERE was an advanced, luxuriant civilization in China when the forebears of the North American Indians, who made up the reception committee for the Mayflower, were jumping around trees, and our own ancestors were doing likewise in the deep forests of western Europe.

That all of our civilization is based upon rediscoveries—inventions that the Chinese possessed long before the dawn of European civilization, is a viewpoint held by a majority of Chinese and western scholars.

Yet there are those who insist that the basic elements of Chinese civilization came from the Mesopotamian region, and which civilization, together with that of the Nile, form the basis of our own.

However, we of today know that western progress adapted Chinese discoveries in the field of pure science—re-invented many devices that had previously been developed and used in China.

The western world was ignorant of Chinese progress, even the very existence of that race, during the Middle Ages.

All knowledge of China in Europe came from Marco Polo's travels after his return to Venice in 1295, and for centuries "The Book of Marco Polo" continued the only European source of information relative to the far east.

Marco Polo was accused of gross exaggeration by his contemporaries, but later travels by many others gradually proved his observations.

Today, it is a good deal like an old man listening to a younger man—China has been observing us. We have applied steam and electricity, and so have the Chinese.

China is very old and matured, yet her sons and daughters have come to us for their education—adapted our methods and devices—even to our clothing.

And all of this is to the credit of the Chinese. It indicates virility in the fullness of days, their age-old desire for progress—to keep young.

Let us look at some of their discoveries—in the light of western progress:

They invented the clock—used it as early as B.C. 2000. There is no mention anywhere in western history of such a device until 3100 years later when clocks came out of Germany during the 11th century.

An even older Chinese invention is the compass. It was known to them as early as B.C. 2634, yet the first western literary reference to the magnetic needle did not come until 3800 years after—during the 12th century—when Alexander Neckam, an English writer, 1157-1217, instructed sailors to "touch a needle with a magnet, which will turn round till, on its motion ceasing, its point will be directed toward the north."

Then there is the discovery of the circulation of the blood, credited to William Harvey, who announced it in England in 1616. The Chinese possessed this knowledge for 500 years, approximately, before Harvey.

Gunpowder, too, is a Chinese invention. They used it, not for war, but in firecrackers—to throw a scare into evil spirits—and which is so applied even unto this day.

Gunpowder recalls one of the many interesting legends of Alexander the Great. It tells of his refusal to attack the Oxydracae, a race then occupying the country between the Hyphasis and Ganges, because "they lived under the protection of the gods and overthrew their enemies with thunder and lightning which they shoot from their walls." The possibility that this is no legend, but actual accomplishment, gains credence by the fact that they were near neighbors of the Chinese, might have acquired knowledge of gunpowder from them, and developed it for use in warfare.

How many centuries passed before this Chinese invention of gunpowder reached Europe, nobody known. But what we do know is that the alchemists in Europe knew how to make it. Roger Bacon wrote of it in 1270—gave the following directions:

"Mix together saltpetre with lura nop cum ubre and sulphur, and you will make thunder and lightning—if you know the mode of mixing."

For some time the words "lura nop cum ubre" puzzled competitors in alchemy. Finally it was found that Roger Bacon had merely followed the fashion of his day—used a transposition of the letters of the Latin words "carbonum pulvere" to hide the English word "charcoal."

Again, nobody knows to what use, if any, gunpowder was put thereafter, until Berthold Schwarz, while in prison for sorcery in Freiburg, Germany, 1330, announced his discovery of it, and recognized its usefulness for military purposes.

His invention was utilized for the first time in western history at the Battle of Crecy, 1346, where iron-balls were hurled by the explosion of gunpowder from the mouths of cannons. And from that time the history of firearms begins.

The Chinese are also credited with the invention of the wheel. They used it, not as an instrument of torture and death, as did the Greeks and Romans later, but as a device on which to tack prayers—every revolution of the wheel was a repetition of a prayer.

And the Chinese were the first to print on fabrics from wooden blocks with ink and by pressure as early as B. C. 50. Then, about A. D. 800, they invented movable type—approximately 640 years before Johann Gutenberg re-invented it in Strassburg, Germany, around 1440. Their movable type was made of burned clay or porcelain, and, as the individual printing units could not be produced in uniform heights in this material, they were justified by embedding in wax.

The first Chinaman to use movable type was a blacksmith.

These few early fundamental inventions should suffice to show the versatility of the Chinese mind in the light of western progrss.

In the gradual adoption of our western ways, their too highly developed philosophy of non-resistance of the past is replaced by an ever-increasing strength of opposition—against the Japanese invader of their country just now.

This doctrine of non-resistance is still being preached by Mahatma Gandi in India and upheld by his millions as the means to eventually driving the English out of India.

Somebody once said: It takes a good deal of resistance to be non-resistant.

The events of the last few years indicate that China has become thoroughly tired of non-resistance.

They are now trying the long-delayed and, perhaps, easier way—the resistance of our western civilization.

A Farmer's Diary

Feb. 26.

"I saw a proud, mysterious cat,
I saw a proud, mysterious cat
Too proud to catch a mouse or rat—
Mew, mew.....mew....."
—(Vachel Lindsay)

CITY friends of ours spent several weeks on a run down farm last summer, taking their huge, yellow, blue-ribboned, Persian cat with them. When the cat was moved, he behaved badly. He crept under a cupboard and would not come out, even to eat. When forced out-of-doors he ran and hid in the gloom of the ramshackle old barn. He did not reappear, though the children put a saucer of cream on the porch for him and called and called... but the next morning the cream was gone. This continued for some time—then one day Tom was back, as proud and mysterious as ever. Not that he ever approved the summer home. He was no farm cat, and he missed city comforts.

Today, when I happened into the old barn, I saw a cat, tensely watching a hole in some straw. This cat was a scrawny, unbeautiful feline, yet by his tawny coat and the silkiness of his restless plumed tail, I knew that he had a strain of Persian lineage. He saw me and ran wildly up on a beam, where he arched his back and glared.

"Like father, like son," I thought, and confessed to a certain satisfaction that I had caught him in the act of catching mice. Hunger—Nature's sure antidote for affection and arrogance! Let grandsire boast his blue ribbons and his cream. A cat's a cat, "for a' that,"—and this one was regular. I gave him a comradely wave of my hand, as I went out...

"Did you ever hear of a thing like that?
Did you ever hear of a thing like that?
Oh, what a proud, mysterious cat...
Mew.....mew.....MEW."

DISMISSES SUIT

Plaintiff Drops Action to Contest Will of Mrs. Hack.

MT. GILEAD—The suit of Maggie Hack Smith against Carrie Belle Shaw of Westfield township, to set aside the will of the late Mrs. Caroline Hack, was dismissed in common pleas court shortly before going to trial Thursday.

The order dismissing the suit was made by Judge Wieland at the plaintiff's request. Costs of the action were assessed against her.

The suit had been set for trial on two previous occasions but was delayed first by a motion for a change of venue and affidavits of prejudice against Judge Wieland filed by heirs of Mrs. Hack.

The will in question disposed of the estate of Mrs. Caroline Hack who was found murdered at her home in Westfield township last April. It provided for equal bequests to all her children with the exception of Mrs. Shaw who was to receive an additional $700.

SEPARATE FUNDS

8 Townships In Ashland to Handle Own Reliefers.

ASHLAND—Eight Ashland county townships will administer their own relief, and the city of Ashland and six townships have been asked to be included in the central relief unit, according to a statement released by the county commissioners here.

The townships which will handle their own relief are Hanover, Milton, Mohican, Jackson, Green Lake, Sullivan and Ruggles. The last two have not sent in their formal notice to continue their own relief, but commissioners said that they are expected to.

The townships which want to become a part of the central relief set-up are Orange, Troy, Vermillion, Clear Creek, Perry and Mifflin.

BUCYRUS SUIT ASKS $10,000 IN TRUCK DEATH

Crawford Woman Files Action In Death of Husband; Says Driver Negligent.

BUCYRUS—Judgment of $10,000 is asked in common pleas court here by Mrs. Lydia Frankenfield for the death last July 23 of her husband, Clarence O. Frankenfield, former master of Lykens grange, who was killed when a truck owned by Edgar Hieber and driven by Ezra Stuckey rammed into the rear of a wagon driven by Frankenfield on the Lykens road.

Hieber is named defendant in the suit. Heiber's truck, according to petition, was traveling between 60 and 65 miles an hour and was being driven in a "negligent and reckless manner."

Mrs. Frankenfield asserts in her petition that she has been deprived of her husband's $2,000 annual income and that she needed $100 to repair a tractor which, attached to the wagon, also figured in the crash which killed her husband instantly.

JUDGE BARS ANSWER

BUCYRUS — Judge Clarence U. Ahl Friday ruled that the supplemental answer of E. A. Didie, defendant in an auto damage case brought by Mrs. Murial Smith, will be barred. He gave Didie until March 1 to amend his petition.

Didie asserted in his petition that Mr. and Mrs. Smith had paid Didie $110 in full for damages, but the court held that evidence taken at the trial did not justify the defense.

Mrs. Smith's petition asks $5,000 from Didie.

MEET ON RELIEF

BUCYRUS—Roy Miller, state relief department auditor, and County Auditor C. C. Metzger Friday met with trustees and clerks of all of the county's 16 townships to discuss relief work.

Each trustee board offered a report on the amount of money being spent for relief work and the work was surveyed by Miller to determine if it was within state limitations and up to state requirements.

Following the meeting Miller and the trustees held a round table discussion on relief needs and how they will be met in the future.

CITES NEED

Galion School Head Points Out Problem of Funds.

GALION — Attention is being called to Galion citizens by O. E. Hill, superintendent of schools, of the necessity of the state school foundation program and the relationship of the sales tax to the support of the schools.

The local levy of 3.5 mills during 1937 on a tax duplicate netted approximately $35,696.53. The state foundation program contributed $56,393.99 on the basis of $30.60 per elementary pupil and $45.90 per high school pupil and tuition.

These figures show that the state foundation pays more than one half of the cost of operating Galion schools. If there were no state school foundation law and no help was received from the state, school board officials would have been obliged to levy 10.2 mills as compared to the 3.5 mills now levied to maintain the present Galion school program.

Supt. Hill points out that should the sales tax be altered by a constitutional amendment it would necessitate replacements of present real estate, less receipts for necessary relief, old age pensions and education.

WED 50 YEARS

BUCYRUS — A wedding which took place Feb. 28, 1888, will be celebrated Sunday, Feb. 27, when Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Miller will observe their golden anniversary with a family dinner at their home, 427 Woodlawn avenue.

The couple's adopted daughter, Mrs. Charles Mitchell of Marion, and family and their brothers and sisters, will be guests at the dinner. Open house will be observed from 7 to 9 p. m.

Mr. Miller served as principal of Bucyrus high school for 12 years, later continuing as instructor in mathematics. He retired from teaching in 1920. Before coming to Bucyrus in 1900 he was employed as superintendent of schools in Sulphur Springs.

SEEKS TO SELL

ASHLAND—Order to sell lot 574½ in South Ashland has been given in common pleas court here in the partition suit of Bess Vanosdall against Henry Vanosdall and others. The real estate was appraised at $2,800.

GALION MISSIONARY SOCIETY STAGES ANNIVERSARY PROGRAM

GALION — An impressive observance of the 20th anniversary of the Woman's Missionary society was held at Peace Lutheran parish house Thursday evening. White covered tables arranged in the form of a cross and attractively decorated in red tapers and red roses were used for the banquet dinner at 6:30 p. m. After a welcome by the president, Mrs. L. E. Place, "The Old Rugged Cross" was sung by Maylily and Evelyn Musselman. Red roses were then distributed to the charter members by Mrs. Albert Pester, and this was followed with a memorial for the deceased mmebers. The entire history of the society was accumulated by Mrs. Place, and then presented when each president of the society gave a resume of their activity as they lighted the red candles. The theme "Presenting a Cross of Service" was carried out through the entire program which was participated in by a number of the members.

Mrs. H. A. Pounder was elected president of the Woman's Missionary society of First Presbyterian church at a meeting held Thursday at the home of Mrs. R. E. Hill. Mrs. Pounder was also the assistant hostess. Among the other officers elected were: vice president, Mrs. R. E. Porter; secretary, Mrs. Hill; treasurer, Mrs. McBerty. The worship service was led by Mrs. A. W. Bradfield, and others on the program were Mrs. James Wisterman, Mrs. Frank Duffey, Mrs. Glenmore Hawkins and Mrs. R. A. Godfrey.

Mrs. Thomas Blair was a guest when Mrs. Lorenzo Kreiter was hostess to her bridge club Thursday evening.

The W. W. club was entertained Thursday evening for card games at the home of Mrs. Daisy Shepard.

A program of more than usual interest featured the meeting of the Willing Workers' and Men's Bible classes at the United Brethren church Thursday evening. A verse of scripture was given for roll call responses, and gifts were presented to the "Secret Sisters" when they were also revealed. Refreshments were also served.

In Jap Crisis

A cabinet crisis in Japan, affecting the premier, Prince Fumimaro Konoye, above, was predicted following a riotous debate on the government's national mobilization bill which would impose wartime regulation on Japanese business, finance, property and private lives.

At the end of a week of Spanish civil war in which insurgent forces turned the tables on their government foe by re-capturing Teruel, Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces were maneuvering for a spring offensive on the upper Aragon, lower Aragon and southeastern fronts.

Government troops miles to the east and southeast of Teruel remained on the defensive, except for shelling the Teruel-Zaragoza highway. An insurgent salient to the Mediterranean would split the one-third of Spain still in government hands.

The week of war in China left Japanese armies stalled in their central campaign on the two sides of the Lunghai railway. A major battle was developing today at Lingshih in Shansi province where 100,000 Chinese were massed to halt a movement to flank the western end of the Lunghai front.

The Japanese navy reported 42 of 50 planes defending Nanchang, heart of Chinese aerial strength, were shot down yesterday when they battled about the same number of raiding Japanese craft. The Japanese admitted loss of only two ships.

PICKS NEW SITE

Willard Lumber Firm, Hit By Fire, to Resume Business.

WILLARD — While smoke rose today from the fire-levelled main building of the Beelman Manufacturing and Lumber company, officials of the firm made plans to continue business from a nearby location.

The property and materials destroyed by the fire late Wednesday night and early Thursday morning, consisting of paint, oil, doors, window sash, roofing and hardware suplies was worth $30,000, E. L. Beelman, president, estimated. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

The company expects to resume business March 15 in the plant of the Metallic Crypt Manufacturing company, which is located on the Beelman company property. The Metallic firm manufactures air conditioning equipment, is in the hands of receivers, and will be sold at public auction March 1. E. L. Beelman also is president of this concern.

New machinery will be installed in the location as soon as present equipment is removed, Beelman said.

WOULD PUT TUNNEY, McGOVERN ON RING BOARD TO END CONFUSION.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK — I place in nomination the name of Gene Tunney, retired undefeated heavyweight champion of the world, as chairman, spokesman and front-man of the New York State Athletic Commission, a body that's supposed to be the bellwether of boxing in America.

Also the name of Artie McGovern, famous physical conditioner, ex-fighter and gentleman.

GENE TUNNEY

The nominations aren't necessarily closed with this. As a matter of fact, they aren't even officially open yet.

Brig. Gen. Jno. J. (Blustering) Phelan is still chairman. Bill (Boisterous) Brown is still a member. So is D. Walker (Unavoidably Detained Out of Town). Wear, the missing link from Binghamton. But this can't go on—unless the idea is to make the national networks with the program and drive all those other funny fellows back to cutting out curl-papers.

If that isn't it then somebody's got to be brought in to play straight-man for the act, so it'll stop coming out in double talk on the records. Tunney's intelligent. So is McGovern. They know the angles in this comical profession. Their sense of humor is strictly adult, not Comedie Francaise.

The current absurdity perpetrated in the guise of judicial action by the commission is the verdict in the strange case of Tony Galento for conduct unbecoming a prize fighter. (Work that one out in your spare time). First, they told Toney he mustn't submit to the camera with a cigar or a glass of beer in his hand. One assumes this destroyed an illusion in the very young. Next, he was not to be photographed with a lolypop and a glass of milk, as this made sport of the commission. Then, just as Galento's very interesting antics were beginning to build up a big gate for the Harry Thomas match, they told him he'd have to go to a training camp—or else (He'd been training in the backyard of his own tap room, as always).

It then developed that Galento had an injured hand and they called off the match, meantime claiming they'd known about the injury all along and only wanted to bring the matter to a head. Of course, they might have had the fellow in for a physical examination, but that wouldn't have been complicated enough.

Finally, they suspended Galento indefinitely, although he isn't licensed here, and they put the bowser on Joe Jacobs, too, although he isn't recorded as Galento's manager. Outside of that, everything made sense.

JUST about the same time, the Brig. Gen. went to Rochester to witness the Freddie Steele-Bob Turner offering and promptly talked his way into a spot, when Turner went out in the first minute of play. I don't profess to know the right or wrong side of this, except that the Brig Gen. might have been less ostentacious. It's one thing to hold up Turner's purse, pending an inquiry, and quite another to stand on a pair of stilts and bellow it at the rafters.

That made the fight look like a "bag" job and there were two elements against this. In the first place, they don't "bag" in the opening minute the customers might get querulous. In the second, no promoter—whatever the ethics of the situation might be—is insane enough to stand for a "cork-screw" fight on his first show in a new town. Promoter Lew Diamond was so anxious to please, he says, that out of a net gate of $2,000, he came away with $32 for himself.

One might run on indefinitely in this vein. There's the Max Baer situation. He was run out of town a year ago without a license. Now he's back as a big attraction with Tommy Farr, although all he's done in the interime was to lose to Farr abroad.

There's Jack Kearns, who was run out of here without a license because they said his fighter, Hank Bath, couldn't fight. None of the commissioners had seen Mr. Bath at the time. They just knew it—by telephoto. They rolled the carpet down for Kearns recently, but that was different for several reasons. Kearns and Baer were just on the wrong team last time.

But why go on? I couldn't possibly cite all the incongruities and, even if I did, it won't make matters look any sillier here. Matters, in fact, couldn't ASHLAND — With Eddie Lore, crack guard, establishing a new all-time individual scoring record, the Yellow Jackets of Mt. Vernon high annexed a share of the North Central Ohio conference championship with Marion by edging Ashland, 41 to 38, here last night in the final game of the season for both teams.

Lore scored 16 points to boost his total to 148 points, seven better than the previous mark set by Bob Strague of Ashland last year. The victory gave the Jackets a record of eight wins and two losses.

Mt. Vernon received a scare in the opening chapter last night, but was able to overcome the big lead piled up by Ashland to win.

Ashland led 19 to 8 the first period, and was still ahead, 21 to 20, at the half. But from there on in, Lore and Trott went on a scoring spree to put the Jackets ahead to stay. Mt. Vernon led, 36 to 33, going into the final stanza.

Trott followed his teammate in the scoring column with 13 points. Smith of Ashland tied Lore for individual honors with 16 points.

Ashland defeated the Mt. Vernon seconds, 26 to 20.

Presidents Romp In Final Game.

SHELBY—The Presidents of Marion Harding smothered Shelby, 44 to 20, here last night to grab a share of the N. C. O. conference championship. The game was the final on both teams' schedule.

Marion, led by Decker, piled up a commanding lead in the initial frame and encountered no trouble as they coasted to the victory.

The Presidents led 13 to 2 in the first period, 28 to 8 at half-time and 40 to 12 going into the final chapter. It was the Whippets' ninth league setback in 10 starts. Shelby scored its only conference victory over Ashland last week.

Decker set the individual pace with 15 points, and Miller, Pittenger and Benham topped the losers with four apiece.

The Shelby reserves scored one of the biggest upsets in the Junior Varsity season by defeating the erstwhile unbeaten Marion seconds, 23 to 22, in the preliminary.

Bucyrus Strengthens Hold on Third Place.

BUCYRUS—Bucyrus ran unmolested over Galion, 49 to 32, here last night to strengthen its grip on third place in the N. C. O. conference. The Redmen bring their season to a close Monday night when they invade Galion for a postponed game.

Led by Henderson, who dumped in 15 points, the Redmen, after fighting through a nip-and-tuck opening chapter, finally found the range to win going away.

Bucyrus led, 14 to 12, in the initial period, 24 to 17, at the half and 30 to 28 in the third stanza. Gardner topped Galion with 12 points.

Semi-Finals, Foul-Shooting Contest Also on Today At Mansfield Gym.

By CHARLES MARTIN

RICHLAND county's representatives in the district tournament to be held in Carey will be determined in the eliminations to close at Mansfield high school tonight.

Championship and consolation semi-finals were being played today, and the winners will advance to the finals tonight.

Ontario Meets Lexington.

In the championship semi-finals, Ontario, defending champion and outstanding favorite, met Lexington, and Butler tackled Lucas.

The two winners will collide at 9 o'clock tonight. The consolation finals will meet at 8 p. m. Both championship finalists will advance to the district tournament regardless of the outcome of tonight's game, which is staged merely to determine the county tournament champion.

In the consolation semi-finals today, Madison faced Shiloh and Union engaged Bellville.

Today's program opened at 12:30 p. m. and following the four semi-final games, a foul-shooting contest will be conducted by W. A. Wickline of Lexington, tournament manager.

Madison, Shiloh Win.

The Rams of Madison and Shiloh's fast stepping quintet reached the consolation semi-finals in the Richland county basketball tournament at Lexington last night with victories over Plymouth and Adario, respectively.

Madison defeated the Plymouth Lions, 26 to 19, while Shiloh regained its winning stride by downing Adario, 26 to 17.

The Rams encountered some stiff opposition from Plymouth but after a see-saw period were able to take a lead they never relinquished. Madison trailed, 5 to 4, in the first stanza, but came back to tie the score at 12-all at the intermission.

And then the Rams blanked Plymouth while they tallied three points in the third chapter to take the lead. Bob Wilkins collected 10 points to set the individual pace.

Shiloh Comes Back.

Shiloh, Twin-Valley league champions, eliminated by Ontario in the championship bracket Thursday night, rolled over Adario with ease. The Drummer Boys took a 4 to 0 lead in the first quarter. At the half the winners led, 14 to 8.

Suffer Losses In Galion Ring

Stahl, Bair Victims of Technical Knockouts.

GALION — Mansfield fighters appearing on the boxing card at the Armory last night suffered defeats.

In one of the best fights on the card, Kid Stahl of Mansfield, lost on a technical knockout to Joe Negrete of Galion in a four-round battle. Stahl collapsed as the gong rang for the final round, and was unable to continue.

Stahl collapsed after his second gave him a drink of spirits of ammonia by mistake, thinking it was water.

Dick Bair of Mansfield, who substituted for Jim Johnson of Galion, lost on a technical knockout to Steve Crokie of Bucyrus in another preliminary bout.

Scoring three successive knock downs, Billy Harry of Galion won over Steve Barciz of Bucyrus on a technical knockout in the third round.

SWIFT SIGNS CONTRACT

PITTSBURGH — (UP) — With Pitcher Bill Swift agreeing to terms of his 1938 contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates, only two members of the Bucs remained unsigned today. They are: Arky Vaughn and Bill Brubaker.

Here's Gentleman Jack, Davis' Foe Monday Night

Pictured at the right is "Gentleman Jack" Claybourn of Chicago, unquestionably one of the greatest colored wrestlers in the world. Claybourn meets Sterling (Silver) Davis of Texas in the headline battle of Monday's mat program in the Armory.

Claybourn and Davis will tangle for the two best out of three falls, with a time limit of 90 minutes, topping another card by the Mansfield Quality club.

WOMEN THREATEN MEN'S SUPREMACY IN MANY BRANCHES OF SPORTSDOM

By ALAN GOULD, Associated Press Sports Editor.
(Last in a series of six articles.)

THIS may prove to be the spot where we should have followed the advice: "Take to the hills, men, before it's too late." Notwithstanding the obvious risks, we nominate herewith 10 women for the "Hall of Fame," selected from the sports where the standards of feminine performance have been highest over the span of years.

Broadly speaking, it's safe only to say that the competitive interest and scope of women's sports have increased greatly in the post-war period, which gave impetus to all athletic activity. The disappearance of "old-fashioned" ideas, like long skirts for feminine tennis players, combined with the enthusiasm of more youthful participation to focus the spotlight on what Ring Lardner called the "opposite sex."

Girl Athletes Progress.

Such has been feminine progress, in fact, that there has arisen some actual debate over eventual supremacy. Without taking this subject too seriously, the fact is that Joyce Wethered, the renowned British golfer, could trounce many a low-handicap masculine opponent; that such tennis stars as Helen Wills Moody and Suzanne Lenglen, at their best, were capable of extending and, on occasion, beating top-flight men players; that Babe Didrikson, the Texas wonder girl, can outdrive many ranking golf professionals; and that Helene Mayer, the famous German girl fencer, competed with men on even terms.

On the other hand, feminine performers in many branches of sport, including track and field, hardly stack up against even the best schoolboy feats. It is in such sports as tennis, golf, swimming and skating that the general level of performance has been high enough, under competitive pressure, to achieve recognition. It is, naturally, from such sports that our selections have been made for the honor roll. The alphabetical listing of the top ten is based, not upon side-stepping grounds, but on the obvious fact that no accurate comparison can be made among competitors in different sports.

My choice: Mary K. Brown, tennis and golf; Mildred Didrikson, all-around; Gertrude Ederle, swimming; Sonja Henie, skating; Suzanne Lenglen, tennis; Helen Wills Moody, tennis; Eleonore Sears, all-around; Glenna Collett Vare, golf; Joyce Wethered, golf; Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, tennis.

So far as tennis is concerned Mrs. Moody has by far the most formidable record of national championship conquests in the grass-court realm.

For all-around contribution to tennis, Hazel Wightman belongs at the head of the class. She was the winner of many tournaments, donor of the Wightman cup and an outstanding coach.

MARY K. BROWNE

We have selected Mary K. Brown because of her versatility. She has won both tennis and golf titles.

Eleanor Sears' claims to athletic fame cover an extraordinary range of activity, including tennis, steeplechasing and squash.

Babe One of Best.

Miss Didrikson unquestionably is one of the foremost competitors of her sex in any sport. Sonja Henie, of course, is in a class by herself at figure skating.

Joyce Wethered is the greatest woman golfer of her time, or any other time. Gertrude Ederle must be selected on the basis of exploits that surpassed even those of the best masculine distance swimmers.

LUTHERANS WIN CROWN

Wittenberg Ends Season With 53 to 35 Victory Over Marietta.

Wittenberg college of Springfield held its first Ohio conference basketball championship today by virtue of 11 consecutive victories in as many games.

A 53-to-35 triumph over Marietta last night gave the fast breaking Lutheran quintet undisputed claim to the title.

The victory was Wittenberg's 15th in a row, including non-conference play, a performance eclipsing that of any other Ohio collegiate contingent. The Marietta battle wound up the Lutherans' schedule.

The new champs, coached by T. W. ("Bill") Stobbs, represent a school which traditionally has commanded the highest respect in basketball circles and, incidently, turned out many cage stars.

Forward Frankie Shannon paced the Lutherans in the crucial Marietta encounter. Wittenberg held a fragile one-point lead at the half, 21-20. Marietta staged a telling offensive early in the second period and took a 28-25 lead.

Then Shannon cut loose with a barrage of baskets from all angles. During the final eight minutes of play he sent six goals home in rapid succession. Shannon copped individual scoring honors with 24 points—11 goals and a brace of charity shots.

Mount Union lowered the curtain on its season last night with a 45-to-36 victory over Kenyon—and claimed the mythical all-Ohio collegiate championship. The win was No. 17 in 19 conference and non-conference battles for the Purple.

Mehock, Assistants Prepare for Relays

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

THINGS are beginning to buzz around the Mansfield Relays headquarters out at the high school, and Harry Mehock is right in the midst of all the commotion.

Today Mehock and his corps of student assistants started addressing 1,600 envelopes in which to mail out invitations to the 12th renewal of the country's most pretentious interscholastic track and field carnival.

This is just the preliminary work, but it requires a lot of time.

OF COURSE, Mehock does not expect 1,600 schools to be represented in his carnival this year, but he will be well satisfied if only a small fraction of the invitations are accepted.

Mehock hopes to reach the 100 mark in team entries this year for the event to be staged at Stadium field Saturday, April 23, and don't be surprised if it passes the century figures.

This Relay is developing into quite an event, and the publicity the city derives from this source is enormous.

Mansfield certainly owes Merock and the Citizens' committee, headed by Dr. W. E. Wygant, a nice vote of thanks for the fine job they're doing to assist in putting the city on the map.

THE Relays committee is going just a little farther than usual this year to promote the gigantic schoolboy meet.

Elaborate booklets containing all the information on the Relays have been published, and they will be mailed to schools and newspapers in the states to which invitations have been extended.

These booklets not only include details of the 1938 event, but history, records, 1937 results and other interesting information.

Heavyweights To Appear On Amateur Card

Fighters of every shape, form and style will display their wares on the amateur boxing show to be staged at the Friendly House Monday night.

The card will open with flyweight and go right on up the line to the heavyweights.

The co-matchmakers, Mike Wentz and Johnny Villella, announced the completion of the card today with the signing of the participants in the heavyweight bout.

It will feature Harold Strine, a former Ashland high school football star, against Bob Brown of Galion. The match is scheduled for three rounds, the same as the other bouts on the program.

Strine and Brown will appear in one of the major bouts, but the main-event will pit Curley Miller, crack Mansfield featherweight, against Ernie McKinley of Ashland, a veteran of many amateur battles.

Simpson Wins Double-Header

Bi-County Champs Set New Scoring Record.

Coach Bob De Haven's Simpson 7th and 8th grade cagers really put on the pressure last night.

The Simpsonites, who clinched the Bi-County league title earlier this week, won both ends of a double-header on their home court last night. They defeated Shelby, 40 to 21, and then routed Hayesville, 72 to 4, to establish a new circuit scoring record.

In the wild game with Hayesville, the junior Bulldogs held the visitors scoreless in every period except the second. They led 28 to 4 at the half.

Hammer scored 32 points in the one-sided victory. Nameth scored 16, and Robertson contributed 12. In the triumph over Shelby, Winbigler tallied 17 points.

Hedges of Mansfield and Perrysville, involved in a battle for second place, played at the Y. M. C. A. last night, and the visitors came out in front, 18 to 11. The score was tied 5 all at the half.

ALLEN INKS CONTRACT

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Johnny Allen, the fiery right-handed mound star of the Cleveland Indians, today became one of the highest paid hurlers in baseball.

Allen, who had returned two unsigned contracts to the Cleveland managements because of unsatisfactory terms, reached an agreement with President Alva Bradley here yesterday.

While the contract figures were not revealed it was believed the burly pitching star had been given a two-year contract calling for $19,000 per season.

By signing the contract Allen becomes the highest paid pitcher ever to work for the Indians. Only one other hurler in the majors receives a higher basic wage. Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants. Hubbell was paid $24,000 last year.

Bob Feller, the Indians' schoolboy star and one of the game's great gate attractions, has a contract calling for a flat salary of $17,500 plus a bonus clause based on the number of victories he gains and the Indians' total attendance.

Manager Oscar Vitt and six Tribe players left here soon after Allen signed his contract for the team's training base at New Orleans. Allen will join the club next Wednesday.

PROF. RUSS MURPHY of the basketball department of Mansfield high school teaches the game too well for his own good.

The Mansfield coach had his own system of play tossed back at him last night as the Tygers engaged a picked Alumni team in the final home game of the season, and the grads did a better job of executing the Murphy style than the high school lads to hang up a 33 to 28 victory before a good-sized crowd.

Rough, Close Game.

It was a rough-and-tumble, nip-and-tuck affair in which the margin was one-sided only once during the imbroglio. That was early in the fourth period, and the Tygers reduced this advantage to a respectable point before the gun.

The Tygers held the lead only a couple of times, and then early in the first period. However, they constantly pressed their more experienced rivals.

Inability to hit the basket in their usual fashion was an important factor in the Tygers' defeat.

So was the remarkable play of the slippery Noel Morgan, who alone accounted for 14 points. It was the 10 points tallied by the fleet-footed guard which provided the winning margin for the Ex-Tygers.

Howard Poole accounted for 11 points, and it was his play that was instrumental in keeping the grads slightly ahead of the Tygers in the first half.

Two baskets by Poole in the early minutes of the opening period staked the Alumni to a lead it never released.

The high school boys stayed within a point or so of the lead all the way until late in the third frame when the grads assembled their first safe lead.

They went into the final period packing a 21 to 15 lead, and lengthened their advantage to 12 points before the Tygers staged a late rally to reduce the score to the final five-point margin.

Lead All the Way.

The Alumni cagemen were in front by an 8-6 margin in the first period, 14-12 at the half and 21-15 at the end of the third quarter. The Tygers scored nearly half of their points in the wild last period.

Jack Lyons led the Tygers in scoring with 10 points, and Johnny Hallabrin, who was playing his last game on the home court, contributed eight. Elmer Dials was another senior who was playing his farewell game.

In the preliminary games, the No. 1 reserves defeated an ex-high quintet, 26 to 23, and the No. 2 reserves whipped a Simpson junior high club, 19 to 11.

HEAD STATE TABLE MEET

Cram, Dr. Weir to Conduct Y. M. C. A. Ping Pong Tourney in Columbus.

Dr. D. A. Weir and Donald D. Cram have been selected to head the State Table Tennis tournament on the Y. M. C. A. Sports' festival at Columbus, Saturday, March 19, it was announced by the State Area office in Columbus today.

Dr. Weir was picked as chairman of the tourney, while Cram was named director. The posts are not new to the two Mansfielders who last year conducted the State paddle tournament at the Mansfield Y. M. C. A. The tourney will be staged in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium at Columbus.

Although several Mansfield ping pong artists are planning to participate in the tournament, it is not known at present exactly how many plan to enter.

Last year Ruhland Isaly and Nick White reached the finals in the doubles division, but whether the two are anticipating taking part this year is not known.

The State Y. M. C. A. tournaments for church and city league basketball, wrestling, weight-lifting, badminton, volleyball, swimming, and other events will be staged at Ohio State University.

Vern Heiser, former Ohio State grapple artist, reached the finals in the State wrestling tourney last year at Columbus, but forfeited his claim to the title due to his weight. Heiser, as yet, has not signified his intentions of attempting to battle for the crown this year.

Henry Gives Chicago Sample of His Prowess

CHICAGO—(AP)—Henry Armstrong, boss of the world's featherweights, moved on today to Minneapolis, the next stop on his busy schedule, leaving 8,042 Chicago fight fans with the impression that he is likely to hang on to his title for a long time.

Armstrong, one of those guys whose style of battling—busy, busier and busiest, as he warms to his work—gave Chicago its first sample of his prowess last night by a three-round technical knockout triumph over Everett Rightmire, game Sioux City, Ia., youngster, in what was scheduled as a 10-round non-title fight.

Moose Teams Head Schedule

Vie in League Match at Meder Alleys Tonight.

Teams representing Mansfield in the Moose lodge Traveling league, now involved in a heated battle for first place, meet in the headline bowling attraction at the Meder alleys at 7:30 today. The No. 2 team leads No. 1 by four games.

The CCC pinsters of Mansfield meet Plymouth's All-Stars in another match on tonight's schedule.

Sunday's bowling card will be headed by two Northern Ohio Traveling league matches. The Miller Oldsmobiles are hosts to Elyria at 2:30 p. m. and the Liederkranz club entertains the Findlay Ohio Banks.

Other Sunday matches pit the Jackson Potato Chips against Newark, Zent's Radios against Newark Goodyears and Mansfield Eagles against Crestline Eagles.

SEABISCUIT FAVORED

SYNOPSIS

Although Charlie Kilbourne is the wealthy owner of Rancho Santa Maria in San Diego county, California, he and Tom Castle, who had been with him in Teddy Roosevelt's Rough Riders in Cuba, spend much of their time prospecting for gold. A dynamite blast in a tunnel leading from a dry river bed uncovers a very rich lode and the old cronies spend the night celebrating the strike that is to make Tom wealthy also. The next day Kilbourne's son Murray, Don Murray as he is known, mining engineer, rides out from the ranch, is told of the gold strike and joins in the jubilation. Murray laughingly belittles himself as a mining expert, asks for a job as cowhand and then the banter turns to which is the better shot, father or son, Castle having told Murray that his father the day before had killed a running jackrabbit with a six-gun. As the elder Kilbourne aims at a target, his ankle turns, he falls, his gun is discharged and the bullet hits Castle. As Tom is dying, he tells of an unhappy marriage, a daughter Sue who is now 20, and the death of his estranged wife. He has sought Sue in vain. He writes a short will, making Sue his sole heir if she is found within three years; if not Murray is to get Tom's share in the mine. The only clue he leaves is a picture of his wife taken at the time Sue was born. Shane O'Hara, the Kilbourne's friend, master of Rancho Soledad, lends him his foreman, Jose Verdugo, to accompany him to Tijuana where an anonymous writer had intimated Sue might be found.

CHAPTER IV.

"But," objected Murray to Jose's reasoning, "Uncle Tom—I mean Mr. Castle—wasn't rich until—until after he got the letter. If it had come after the strike . . .

Maybee she know that Senor Castle ees one great friend of your father and you, Don Murray. Your father has much monee."

"That's possible, of course," assented Murray. "But . . . it doesn't seem to make sense."

"Not to make thee sense. Seguro que no, Don Murray. Nothin' she make thee sense about this business, by damn. Me, I'm—w'at you say?—coocoo like a pigeon about thees business. But I theenk one theeng, meester, and I theenk heem very hard. Thees business is so coocoo that there ees one woman behind it. I betcha. And maybee one man behind thees woman."

"You mean, Jose, that maybe some man is using the writer of this letter—for purposes of his own?"

"I betcha," Jose agreed. "I betcha there ees one woman and some mans behind her." He struck his head with his knuckles. "I dunno. But there ees something funnee. Damn funnee business."

Murray had nothing further to say. He felt that Jose probably saw as much of the picture as any one could. "Well, I'm leaving tonight for Tijuana. Will you be ready?"

"I'm ready now, Don Murray," said Jose. "Pret' damn queeck I kees that weedow, I betcha!"

It was after dark when Murray's big roadster rolled through the American and Mexican customs houses at San Ysidro, across the bridge which spans an alleged river—a river "sunny side up" as people have said—and swung up the slight paved grade leading to the main street of Tijuana.

Every building was brilliantly aglow with lights, but it was yet too early for the real night life of the Mexican town. Which is to say that the casual tourists—school teachers from Iowa and Maine and California, respectable residents of San Diego who had had to take visiting friends from the Middle West to show them the naughtiness of the Mexican playground, grandmothers from Oklahoma who wanted their pictures taken sitting on a jackass, clerks from the San Diego mercantile establishments taking their girls for a two-dollar buggy ride—all the stuff that a Mexican Coney Island would bring out—these had seen and heard and thought their fill and gone home.

Mexico after dark? Oh, dear me, no. Why, somebody would stick a knife in your back, sure as shootin'.

There were, however, some hundreds of people who were staying for the big show. And other hundreds who were now rolling down to Tijuana for a night of it. Movie stars from Hollywood, and folks from Hollywood who wanted to become movie stars. Bankers, lawyers—the successful ones—city officials from eminently respectable Southern California towns, dignified gentlemen from all over the country who had to behave at home. . . . accompanied by more dignified wives, if they were unlucky, or by pretty girls who looked neither to right nor left, but always up into their escorts' faces. . . .

Daylight and darkness in Tijuana are like childhood and age. In the daytime Shirley Temple could have a wonderful time there—or any other eight or nine-year old intelligence. After dark old Tia Juana—Aunt Jane—takes charge.

At the entrance to the main street Jose, riding with Murray, laid a hand upon his arm. Pointed a right turn.

"This way, Don Murray," he said, "to my cousin's garage."

Murray swung the car that way. It had been decided, on the way down, that the garage of Jose's primo, Manuel, located upon one of the little used side streets of the town, would be the best place to leave the car. There it would attract no attention. would be available at any hour of the day or night, and would please cousin Manuel, whom Jose had an idea they might be able to use in this business.

At Jose's touch the car pulled up before a big frame one-story building which seemed to have been closed for the day. Only one square of yellow light showed in the rear of the place.

As a matter of fact, the place was closed for the day, because the natives of Tijuana do not run around in their cars at night—there is no place to go with a car except around the block—and the foreign cars naturally patronized the establishments along the main highway. Which was perfectly satisfactory to Manuel, who would shrug his shoulders, snort cigaret smoke, and give the opinion that if a man couldn't make enough money to live on during the day, he had better go into some other business. But to work day and night! Caramba! Only a fool, or an American, would dream of doing that.

When Jose, then, hammered lustily on the door beside the lighted window—for Manual and his family, it appeared, now resided in quarters which he had built on to his place of business—he received as his answer only a surly "Quien es?" Who is it? But when he had shouted "Jose Verdugo. Open the door you lazy pig," footsteps shuffled, the door was unlocked and opened, and a brown face—the eternal cigaret dangling from mouth-corner—peered out to make certain that the visitor was in reality his cousin from the north.

"Come and open you garache, lazy one. I wish to put a car in it for the night."

"What!" exclaimed Manuel, opening the door wider. "You have a car then, Jose! You must be getting rich, being foreman of a ranch. But why not take it elsewhere? My place has been closed for hours. But many others—"

"Do you think this is the first visit to the town where I was born?" Jose desired to know. "Would I take a good car to your dirty garache unless there was some good reason to do so? Would I—"

"Go at once, Manuel," a feminine voice harshly broke in. "Go pronto and open the doors. I can use an extra peso or two, even if you cannot." Another shadow darkened the door. "And why do you not invite your cousin Jose into the house? Why—"

"He talks too much," Manuel defended himself. "So much that I forgot to do so." He stepped aside.

"Buenas noches, Jose," the feminine voice greeted. "Come in. Come in."

"Later, Margarita," replied Jose. "That car is not mine, but that of an American friend of mine. Let us put it in, and later we may talk. And there will be more than a peso or two in this business."

So, still grumbling, Manuel opened his garage door and the car was put away.

Meanwhile Murray lighted a cigarette and sauntered toward the bright lights. He had no reasoned program. No reasoned program was possible in the circumstances. All he could do for the time being was to put himself in the current which might also be carrying Sue Castle. Besides, tomorrow he had to go to Rancho La Luz to see Don Vicente and the Senorita Mercedes. Only upon his return would his search begin in earnest. Tonight was nothing. Except that he might get a definite idea of recent changes among the cafes conducted by Aunt Jane. It had been a long time since he had played in Tijuana's bright lights.

Reaching the main street and turning south, he came to the Cafe Porfirio Diaz, ablaze with light, raucus with the noice of an orchestra playing American jazz, and the chatter of people at bar and tables, and the dancing of feet.

Well, one cafe was as good as another. Wherefore he entered and took a seat and ordered a drink. But after half an hour he saw that there was only the orchestra for entertainment—no singers or dancers—so he got out of there and continued his way, deciding now merely to spot those cafes where girl entertainers were in evidence.

So at last he came to the far end of the street, beyond which lay darkness, and was about to return along the main street when the sound of music and a girl's voice came to him from around the corner. Going that way he came upon an unpretentious cafe—the Cafe Mexico City—from which the song proceeded. He entered the place and discovered that, although the Cafe Mexico City was on a side street, it was clean, commodious and apparently a respectable resort of the better class of Mexicans, who shun the cafes which cater to the American tourist.

An aproned waiter at the entrance looked at him, nodded, and said "Buenos noches, senor," and made him otherwise welcome—in Spanish. By which Murray knew that, as usually happened in Mexico, and, embarrassingly, sometimes in the United States, he had been taken for a Mexican. Well, that was okey. It would facilitate his search to be so considered. Wherefore he replied in Spanish and made some polite small talk in that language, before he went on to take a seat at a little round wooden-topped table at one side of the room and order a whiskey and soda. He had his choice of seats, almost, because there were not more than fifty people in the place as yet.

The two girls who had been singing as he had entered had finished their song almost immediately, and the orchestra was now playing Hawaiian music composed by a German in Tin Pan Alley, New York. Murray looked over the crowd, but saw nothing unusual; merely a group of seemingly-well-to-do Mexicans—with, of course a scattering of the less prosperous looking—enjoying their drinks and cigarettes and the music. Apparently a peaceful little place.

Then the music came to an end, the orchestras switched quickly into another melody, and a girl appeared on a small platform at the end of the hall. A girl dressed in Spanish dancer's costume. A green gown with short fluffy skirt, tight bodice, golden stocking and slippers. Bare-armed. Dark hair drawn close. For a moment she stood there, looking over audience, smiling.

A very good looking girl, Murray thought, as he studied her. Dark eyes and dark hair, and full lips that smiled. A self-confident girl, manifestly. Poised. And yes, surprisingly, she bore some resemblance to the photograph of Sue Castle's mother. Something about the eyes, was it? Or the chin?

Then she was singing. Singing "Marquita" in a lovely contralto. And in Spanish.

Suddenly there came another voice, joining hers, and another girl—a girl clad in pink—came to stand beside her.

Murray stared at the newcomer. She resembled the photograph of Sue Castle's mother as much as the other girl did. And—Murray shrugged—the two girls strongly resembled each other. Well . . . what was it Jose had said? "All women, they look alike, I betcha." Assuredly he was going to have a sweet time profiting by the fact that he possessed a photograph of Mrs. Thomas Castle when she was a girl.

INCOME TAX IN NUTSHELL

NO. 30

Checking Delinquents.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has at its command many sources for checking up delinquent taxpayers. One of these is the "information at source" provision of the revenue act, under which persons, "in whatever capacity acting," are required to report to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington, D. C., payments to another in any calendar year of $1,000 or more. If the recipient is married, and is a citizen or resident of the United States, reports need not be made of salary or other compensation for personal services unless the payments aggregate $2,500 or more. If the marital status of the payee is unknown to the payor, the payee is considered a single person for the purpose of filing an information return of salary or other compensation for personal services.

Fixed or determinable income includes wages, salaries, royalties, premiums, rents, interest, etc. A separate return of information for each employee is required of employers. The requirements are not limited to periodical payments, but a single payment must be reported. Domestic and resident foreign corporations are required to make a separate report of dividends or distributions for each individual, citizen, or resident of the United States, resident fiduciary, or a resident partnership any member of which is a citizen or resident, who was paid $100 or more during the calendar year 1937.

All persons or organizations acting at any time during the year 1937 as broker or other agent in stock, bond, or commodity transactions (including banks which handle clearing orders for depositors or custodian accounts) are required to file returns on Form 1100 with respect to all customers, depositors, or accounts for whom or which business was transacted during the year. A separate Form 1100 must be prepared for each customer, depositor or account for whom or which business was transacted during the year, and must show the name and address and other information provided for in the form.

Information returns are carefully checked with individual returns of taxpayers. Thousands of delinquent returns and additional revenue amounting to millions of dollars have been secured as the result of the examination of information returns.

BOOKS SPEAKER

MILLERSBURG—For their third speaker on a program of addresses for the Institute of International Understanding, the Millersburg Rotary club has secured C. Douglass Booth, a native of Canada, but more recently of England. His subject will be "World Economic Cooperation." Wednesday afternoon, preceding the evening talk. Mr. Booth will speak to the school children in the high school auditorium.

SOURCE GREATER

Rabbit Hunters Pay Most of Hunting License Income.

BALTIMORE—(AP)—Ohio hunters of cottontail rabbits pay 65 per cent of the hunting license income, James W. Stuber, assistant in the Bureau of Game management in that state, told the North American Wildlife conference.

The state purchased 70,600 rabbits last year, and is planning further restocking in refuges.

Propagation of the cottontails in a wild habitat in protected fields rather than on a protected ranch has proven successful, he said.

Despite their numbers, he added, hunters accounted for only two per cent of the rabbit mortality. The others were killed by automobiles, cats, dogs, foxes, crows and owls, he said.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

DURHAM, N. C.—(AP)—Every time Dr. J. B. Rhine of Duke university wins a victory for his "second sight" experiments, a new scientific objection rises to try to slap him down.

This time the slap comes from the old idea that figures will prove anything. That objection is brought to answer Rhine's recent mathematical victory.

High mathematical authorities admitted that so far as the laws of mathematical probability were concerned, Dr. Rhine was right in asserting that the number of correct guesses by certain persons calling the faces of unseen cards exceeded chance by billions of times to one. That, Dr. Rhine held, proved the existence of extrasensory perception—vulgarly known as second sight.

But now H. Rogsin, of Essex Junior College, Newark, N. J., asserts that even with the admission of mathematical correctness, Rhine still must be mistaken. It is true that the figures prove something odd, but they don't prove, says Rogsin, that the something is extra-sensory perception.

He publishes his objections in the Journal of Psychology.

N. T. G. Presents Latest Revue In City Wednesday

For the second time within a year, Mansfield will see Nils T. Granlund, better known as N. T. G., and his revue of girls when the producer appears at the Madison theater Wednesday, March 2, for four shows.

His current revue features some new beauties and comedians. The Slate Brothers of last years' show who have since gone into pictures, have been replaced by "The Three Sailors" of the same variety of comedy.

Another feature of this year's show which attracts attention is the parade of Ziegfeld costumes, among them the costumes worn by the late Marilyn Miller in "Sunny."

N. T. G. productions are distinguished by the beauty of the girls, for he gathers up artists' models and the pretties show girls of the New York cabarets each season.

In connection with the revue, the Madison theater is staging a Big Apple contest at both of the night performances, with cash prizes for the winners. A feature of the show are the Carolina dancers who originated the Big Apple.

SENT TO PRISON ON ODD CHARGE

Restaurant Owner Gets 1-10 Years for "Larceny of Electricity."

CHICAGO — (INS) — For the first time in the history of Illinois, a man was headed for prison today for larceny of electricity.

Judge Robert J. Dunne sentenced Gust Menegas, restaurant owner, to one to ten years for purloining $3,200 worth of current. It was charged that Menegas attached a jumper wire which detoured that much voltage around his electric meter.

Previously it was supposed that electricity was not sufficiently "tangible" to permit a theft charge for its diversion.

COLLEGIAN WITH YANKEES

MALONE, N. Y. —(U.P.)— Don Ryan, Manhattan College senior and ace pitcher for the Malone Star's, announced he has signed a contract to join the New York Yankees after graduation. Ryan said he expected to be "farmed out" to Akron, Birmingham or Dayton.

DOCTOR, 80, STILL PRACTICES

HUBBARD, O.—(U.P.)—Dr. Wilson H. Button has rounded out 53 years as a practicing physician in Hubbard and surrounding countryside. On his 80th birthday, he said: "I can't get around as easy now as I did in the old horse and buggy days."

FARMERS REFUSE BONUS

REGINA, Sask. —(U.P.)— Two Saskatchewan Mennonite farmers recently turned down government farm employment bonus checks because they believed it would involve them in compulsory service in the event of war.

STOCK PRICES MANEUVER IN NARROW RANGE

Gains Limited in Final Session Of Week in Which Leaders Advance Slightly.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The narrow price movements ruled today's early stock market dealings.

At a slow opening small gains were recorded for Sante Fe, Bethlehem, National Distillers, N. Y. Central and U. S. Rubber.

About even were U. S. Steel, Standard Oil of N. J., Anaconda, Sears Roebuck and Chrysler. General Motors lost a major fraction.

Sales Encourage Motors.

On the side of motor shares were reports that new car sales thus far in February had registered gains ranging up to 25 per cent over the January level.

Although department store levels in the New York district have suffered a much larger decline from the corresponding 1937 figures than had been experienced in preceding weeks, recent estimates by trade observers indicated inventories in the metropolis as well as in other eastern centers had dropped substantially under the same time a year ago.

JUVENILE 'GANG' ADMIT 2 THEFTS

4 Boys, Including One 7 Years Old, Confess Burglarizing Home and Drug Store.

They also admitted taking two boxes of hypodermic needles from the Caldwell & Bloor wholesale Drug company, 34 East Third street, several days ago.

Twirling his cap around his finger and grinning, the youngest member of the group told Judge Anderson he was caught by a member of the Summerville family when he went back to get more trinkets. The boy had a key to the back door of the home in his pocket.

Judge Anderson questioned the boys one at a time yesterday afternoon, and indicated later that he would go further into the case when he returned in two weeks from his vacation. None of the parents were called in yesterday, but the judge said he would confer with them later.

'DAVEY' SINGS ABOUT 'GOLD'

Governor, Poulson Targets For Fun as Newsmen Stage Annual Gridiron Show.

"You can have Poulson, too, when I'm through,
"When I'm through."

State Democratic Chairman Francis W. Poulson was portrayed counting a roll of currency and singing:

"I'm making lots of money.
"I'm having a damned good time.
"My cash is banked in Canada,
"You can't touch a single dime."

"Hot Mix," the recently publicized black-top material for highways that came under the scrutiny of the senate investigation committee, inspired these lines to the tune of the "Maine Stein Song":

"Raise your steins of oil and grease
"Shout while the grafters mix,
"Let us drink a toast once again
"The streets are paved with golden bricks.
"You have to sell it while it's hot,
"That's what the smart boys learned,
"Go ahead and make a million,
"But never get your fingers burned."

the cards but did not know what was written on them.

Members of the senate committee said they would keep watch to see that the card index file is not removed and that employes who testified concerning the cards "are not punished for having told the truth."

Miss Rainey told the committee that the card index list she made of state employes was compiled in the office of the Davey Air Compressor company at Kent. She said the list was compiled in three weeks, during which she was paid her state salary.

Miss Curtis testified that more than 30,000 cards were kept up to date by Miss Lena Servius and herself.

Cards of employes who were dismissed were put in a "termination drawer," Miss Curtis said. More than 3,000 cards are in this drawer, she added.

Miss Rainey stated that the cards were hauled to and from Kent in a state highway truck.

The fight between Sen. Seidner and Rowland started after Rowland had been ordered to stop talking to Frank E. Walker of Columbus, a witness before the committee. Rowland contended he was counsel for Walker but Walker said he had not retained an attorney.

Rowland left the committee room and sent a message to Walker. Sen. Seidner intercepted it, went outside, and the fight ensued.

Cited For Contempt.

The committee voted to cite Rowland for contempt and to turn over a transcript of the hearing on the matter to the Columbus Bar association and the common pleas court.

The perjury hearing for Lee Bradley, star witness for the committee earlier this week, which was to have been held today in East Cleveland, was postponed indefinitely by a legal move by Bradley's counsel.

Over the objection of attorneys for Gov. Davey who filed the perjury action, Common Pleas Judge Walter McMahon set next Wednesday for a hearing on a prejudice affidavit filed by Bradley's counsel against Municipal Judge Stanton Addams of East Cleveland. This stayed the perjury hearing automatically.

Wendell Willkie, president of Commonwealth and Southern Corp., continued his exchange of telegraphic messages with the graft committee today. The committee had asked him whether he had conferred with Gov. Davey personally during the latter's 1934 campaign for governor, and had challenged his statement that there was no U. S. senate investigation of utility firms in 1934.

"I wish to state that to the best of my recollection, I never met Mr. Davey with Mr. Bradley. So far as I recall I only met Mr. Bradley once when he came to my office alone after making an appointment with my secretary as a sales representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co.," Willkie wired the committee.

"I repeat that Mr. Bradley's testimony concerning me is entirely false."

Bradley had testified that he obtained verbal introduction to other utility executives with the help of Willkie.

Willkie insisted there was no congressional investigation of utility firms in 1934.

GEN. PERSHING SINKS RAPIDLY

Death Winning in War Hero's Last Battle; Speechless, Unable to Take Food.

and 4 a. m., when life is at its lowest ebb and seriously sick people usually have their crisis.

Hurries to Sickroom.

The doctor was dismayed that Gen. Pershing had suffered one of his periodical setbacks just before 2 a. m. He hurried back from the meeting with newspapermen at the cottage door and said that unless something unexpected developed, there would be no more reports for a time.

A short time earlier Master Sgt. C. C. Shaeffer, the general's personal aid for 10 years left the group of anxious relatives at the cottage and went to make a telephone call to the war department in Washington. He wanted the general's old uniform sent here at once, so that in event of his death, the general could be clad in it.

At the time the sergeant called Washington, Gen. Pershing had fallen into a deep stupor from which the doctors could not arouse him. Dr. Davison had said that oxygen was being given continuously to "relief air hunger," and that his respiration was very irregular. The sergeant stopped to tell reporters that in case the general died, he would be taken at once to Washington to rest in the Arlington National cemetery.

All day yesterday and the night before, Gen. Pershing had struggled against relapses into coma. At times he seemed nearly conscious although he never rallied enough to talk. Again he would sink into what seemed a deep sleep. He suffered no pain. His affliction was strain on the heart muscles, caused by too rigorous activities in recent years.

Only his doctors entered the sick room. His sister, Miss May Pershing, kept a constant vigil outside the door. Inside, the general lay on the single bed which, in addition to a table and two chairs, were the only furnishings.

The general was showing amazing vitality but in spite of it, and his occasional rallies, Dr. Davison considered his condition extremely critical. In addition to Dr. Davison, who was the general's personal physician, Lieut Col. Shelly U. Marietta, army heart specialist of Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and Dr. Verne Mason, professor of clinical medicine at the University of Southern California, were in attendance, and yesterday Dr. P. Dake Biddle, an eye specialist, was called into the case.

Dr. Davison explained that the purpose of the examination of the general's eyes "is to follow the events in the head through examination of the interior of the eye."

HOME FROM OHIO LEAGUE SESSION

Four Fish and Game Members Attend State Sportsmen's Meet.

Four members of the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association, returned last night from Columbus where they attended a two-day meeting of the Ohio League of Sportsmen.

Representing the County association were John C. Friday, president, N. H. Heston, secretary, A. A. Miller, association director and C. I. Kimmel, Richland county game warden.

Four other members of the association attended the annual meeting of the Ohio League held Thursday night. They were Harold Lutz, Peter Russel, Roscoe McGinty, Richard Worington.

Dr. J. W. Ogden, Hayesville, was elected sevond vice president of the Ohio league, and James H. Tallmadge, Jeromesville, was elected vice president of the Ohio Game Breeders' association.

The regular meeting of the Richland County association will be held at 7:30 p. m. Monday at the North Lake park pavilion. Reports of the state convention will be given at this time.

any more help from the state, adding that any new appropriation would either have to impose new taxes or "take the money from one pocket and put it in another.

The state fund which now provides the county's $5,500 monthly allocation is built from diverted sales tax receipts which otherwise would be used for general operating expenses in the county and Mansfield.

Commissioners said there is no possibility of transferring any county funds to the relief fund.

The increasing relief cost, which is seven times as great now as it was last summer, was blamed on the industrial recession in the county.

OPEN HOUSE

Not That It Matters

—By JANE WILLIAMS

HAS it occurred to you that we are being subjected to a well laid campaign of pro-British propaganda these days? And be "we" I mean us simple folks here in Mansfield as well as others all over the United States?

A nice campaign it is too, because (a) it is directed at the thinking people, and (b) it uses as its talking point the incontrovertible fact that America and Great Britain, brothers by every tie of blood, instincts, intelligence and ideals, must hang together or hang separately.

All of the speakers at the Institute of International Understanding have stressed the fact in one way or another, that England and the United States must stick together for their mutual preservation. Against what? Radicalism and dictatorships? Great Britain, went out to meet them with a troubled face a few days ago when Anthony Eden resigned and Neville Chamberlain extended a neighborly hand to them. The post-war chaos that now is rolling eastward over all Europe? If we rush to save the empire from that, then put on your fightin' clothes lads, for we are in for another 100 years war.

ENGLAND (and by England we mean the head of the British Empire) made a slight mistake more than 150 years ago when she arbitrarily placed a heavy tax on tea for one of her colonies. But all she paid for that mistake was the loss of a promising colony, the young America.

But for the mistake that Neville Chamberlain made the other day, she will pay a tremendous price, whether it is the loss of many of her colonies, or a long drawn out war.

One immediate price she has paid already is in world prestige. It has suffered. Right now England is standing on the brim of a chasm into which her influence as a power may collapse. For the first time in his history the British government has indicated that it is not equal to its international responsibility.

PERHAPS the rapidly moving changes of these times will make an alliance with Great Britain imperative. It is not so now, and the thing we must not do is rush into any kind of an alliance with a European power. England has only one colony for whom we must gird our forces and fight if necessary—and that is Canada, in case of invasion.

That, of course, is hardly altruistic, since it is necessary to save our own necks. But an alliance with Canada for mutual armed protection, and an exchange of commerce and raw materials, would place the North American continent in an impregnable position.

FROM McIntyre's column, I learn that Emily Post and Margery Wilson, umpires of behaviorism, approve elbows on the dining table. As one of the confirmed elbow-benders, I am delighted to be thus approved. Elbows on the table are o. k., say they, because "it seems less stiff." Being un-stiff was not my reason: I do it because I have to have something to lean on.

Probably my ancestors were WPA workers.

IT IS ABOUT time the board of education became concerned about spelling as it isn't taught in the public schools. In the past seven and a half years there has been a regular parade of high school graduates through this office, and there have been three or four in the entire lot that could spell well enough to hold down a simple writing job. Other offices in Mansfield have had the same experience.

A member of the board of education told me the other night that when ever he hires a high school graduate for office work, the first thing he does is buy her a dictionary for her own use. One irate father exploded when his son couldn't make out a rent receipt because he couldn't spell "garage!"

Two girls at a party—one a high school graduate and the other a graduate of Miami—cried "unfair!" the other night in a quiz-bee when questions pertaining to geography were asked. "We never studied geography after the fourth or fifth grade, and before that only a little," was their perfectly legitimate alibi.

The public school system is the most expensive publicly maintained institution in America, and yet when parents and tax payers consider what their children get for the money, it is a little discouraging. The entire public school curriculum might well be revised to include the fundamentals of knowledge.

Sometime when you get tired of bridge and quiz-bees and want to create a little excitement you might offer a prize of $5,000 to any two of your guests who define the following and get exactly the same answers: Communism, Nationalism, Totalitarianism, Socialism, Fascism, Nazlism, Americanism and Democracy.

Not only will your offer be perfectly safe, but there will be more darn fun when all of the guests start shouting at each other.

THOUGHTS While Doing Nothing: Maybe it's a part of higher education, but 297 girls from the art school of William and Mary college wrote Robert Taylor the same day asking for autographed pictures, while Clark Gable received 331 letters postmarked at the same day from gals of the University of Alabama, asking for that many pitchers of the screen's Great Big He-Man. . . . Hitler denied that his three-hour speech implied war. Still, it didn't sound like the welcome address of a Boy Scouts conference. . . . When the baby princess of the Netherlands was born, 21 guns—or was it 51?—were fired. Probably to prepare her for what's ahead. . . . Oscar of the Waldorf, one of the world's most famous chefs, is sick abed with indigestion. But it's difficult to feel sorry for one who gets indigestion from crepe suzettes and fresh lobster.

Mad Ax Wielder Jailed, Victim Near Death

YOUTH FELLED BY 3 BLOWS IN LIBRARY CHASE

Trivial Argument Blamed for Sudden Attack, Police Say; Told of Knifings.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—In a hospital today with little chance to live was John Abbott, 27, his head nearly severed from his body and in a police cell was Charles Frankel, 32, the madman engineer who chopped down Abbott in Manhattan's main library after a trivial argument.

Even while Frankel believed deranged because of long unemployment, was swinging his razor-edged hatchet in a corridor of the Fifth Avenue library, police waited at his home to pick him up for attempting to stab another library patron with a jagged-edged kitchen knife last Tuesday.

His knife was taken from him and he was allowed to go at that time because the man he tried to stab refused to enter a complaint and the incident was not reported to police until sometime later—too late to prevent Frankel's return to the library and the Abbott tragedy.

Study Side By Side.

Abbott, an efficiency engineer, was studying in the economics room. Frankel, graduate in civil engineering from City college in 1928, was sitting beside him. They had words over something and Abbott left the room, Frankel following.

A minute later a shriek of raw terror brought patrons to their feet. The first to arrive in the corridor outside the economics room saw Frankel, hatchet in hand close behind Abbott who was running. Three times the hatchet cleaved Abbott's skull and then Frankel leaped for the stairs.

But a doorman warned by the screams and shouts from above brought down the fleeing madman with a flying tackle at the door.

Turned over to police he was found to have a sharp linoleum knife and a pair of scissors on him as well as the hatchet.

Abbott was believed to be a native of Cleveland, O., the son of Dr. M. J. Abbott of Cleveland Heights

SCOUTERS MEET

Area Conference Opens Today At City Headquarters.

More than 150 scout leaders and officials from the Johnny Appleseed Boy Scout area were expected to attend the 18th annual meeting of the area council, and the annual scouters conference here today at scout headquarters in the Elks' building.

The meeting was scheduled for 2:30 p. m. with the scouters and troop committeemen conference. The scouters conference will be in charge of Phil Smith, Mansfield district committeemen. D. D. Montoya, area field executive, will preside at the troop committeemen meeting.

The annual council meeting, and election of officers was scheduled for 4 p. m. with L. A. Ott, area president in charge. A review of the past year's activities was to be given by committee heads.

At 6:30 p. m. the annual scouters banquet will be held in the dining room at the Elks' home. Guest speaker will be O. B. Evenson, deputy regional executive, Cincinnati.

The annual awarding of the Silver Beaver badge, for outstanding service in the council will be made during the banquet, and 18 other officials will be presented with service awards.

GIVES PLAY AT CHURCH MONDAY

Class to Present First of Series Next Week.

The first in a series of religious plays by the Martin Luther Sunday school class of St. Matthew's Lutheran church will be given at 8 p. m. Monday in the church basement.

"For He had Great Possessions," will be the title of the first play by the group. Cast in the play are William Mabee, W. W. Walter, John Mabee, Robert Rrye, Raymond Beal, Mrs. W. W. Walter, Mrs. Charles Nussbaum, Mrs. Raymond Beal, Mrs. John Mabee and James Beal.

The play will be under the direction of Mrs. Charles F. Sheriff.

CLUB BANQUET

90 Employes and Guests at Annual Theater Group Event.

The annual banquet of the Warner club was held at the Baku Grotto hall last night with 90 employes of Mansfield theaters and guests in attendance. Dancing followed the banquet with music being furnished by Jimmy Sans' orchestra.

Trophies were presented to Frank Harpster and Howard Straub, champions of the golf league sponsored by the club. The presentations were made by William Dworski. Robert Black was chairman of the arrangements committee.

DEMANDS FUNDS FOR SHIP YARDS

Vinson Says Nation Would Be In 'Horrible Fix' If War Should Break Out.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the house naval committee proposed today that the navy expansion program provide for improved shipyard facilities, particularly on the Pacific coast.

He said the nation would be "in a horrible fix" if war should find the yards congested.

"It is imperative that we have private as well as navy yards available to handle both construction and repair work," he said.

Vinson, entrusted by the administration with guiding the $1,156,000,000 navy bill through the house, said he would offer an amendment to give west coast shipbuilders a 6 per cent differential on naval contracts.

Under this proposal Pacific coast builders could submit bids 6 per cent higher than the lowest in the east and be eligible for contracts.

Similar provisions are in the Merchant Marine acts and in the naval auxiliary building program authorized last year.

Vinson said he also would offer an amendment to permit the navy department to improve all navy yards.

COUNTY NATIVE DIES AT AGE 71

Mrs. Susie Urich Stricken at Home in Franklin Township.

Mrs. Susie Ellen Urich, 71, of Franklin township, wife of Judson F. Urich, died at her home Friday. Born Nov. 24, 1866, Mrs. Urich was a lifelong resident of the county. She was a member of the Pleasant Valley Baptist church.

Surviving besides her husband are a son, Wade; a grandson, Robert of Youngstown; a great-grandson, and a sister, Mrs. Effie J. McElroy of Toledo.

The body was taken to the Finefrock funeral home where services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Sunday with Rev. Hayes M. Braker of the Park Avenue Baptist church officiating. Burial will be in the Franklin cemetery.

WARN JAPAN SHE'LL HAVE TO ACCOUNT FOR PROPERTY LOSS

(By United Press)

TOKYO — The United States, Great Britain, France and Germany have informed Japan that they will hold her responsible for any damage to property belonging to their citizens in China, it was learned today.

The notes, uniform in character though varying in text, were replies to a Japanese circular note two weeks ago in which Japan sought to waive responsibility to property of foreigners in portions of China not under Japanese control.

The United States and France, it was learned, replied early this week and Britain and Germany replied today.

Avoids Talk On Crisis.

TOKYO — (AP) — Victorious in its first pitched battle with the government over the drastic general mobilization bill, the Diet sub-committee to which it was sent for avoided discussion of it in a brief session today.

The 45-member sub-committee convened for ten minutes and elected a chairman, then adjourned until Monday. It was believed the government would unlimber its biggest gun—Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye—at the next session.

The premier remained at his suburban villa during the general sessions of the Diet (parliament) when the lower house howled down government supporters of the bitterly controversial measure.

The bill would give the government mandates amounting to absolute power over the people. Articles stipulate the government may impress labor for "general mobilization work," expropriate citizens, suppress newspapers, prohibit the right of assembly and suppress freedom of speech.

125 AT MEET

Odd Fellows and Rebekah Lodges of District Convene.

One hundred twenty-five members of Odd Fellow and Rebekah lodges of the 20th Ohio district of the I. O. O. F. lodge, attended a joint meeting of the two groups here last night at the Odd Fellow temple.

Guest speaker at the meeting was James M. Elliott of Sebring, grand master of the I. O. O. F. lodge of Ohio. He spoke on, "Odd Fellowship, and its Future."

Other speakers were H. F. Hyner of Ashland, district representative, and Common Pleas Judge C. C. Chapman of Ashland. The speakers were introduced by Louis Beamer, noble grand of Mansfield lodge No. 19. Lunch was served following the meeting.

GALION MAN DIES

George S. Klein Succumbs at 66 After Three-Week Illness.

GALION—George S. Klein, 66, died in Good Samaritan hospital last night after an illness of three weeks. Born in Galion, Sept. 14, 1871, Mr. Klein is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Henry Shumaker and Mrs. Augusta Rehl of Galion. He was a member of the Peace Lutheran church and I. O. O. F. lodge.

Services will be held at the Volk funeral home at 2 p. m. Monday in charge of Rev. G. E. Auer, with burial in the Fairview cemetery.

DEATH CLAIMS EX-MANSFIELDER

Body of Mrs. Theresa Reamsnider Returned to City for Burial.

Mrs. Theresa Reamsnider, 86, a former resident of Mansfield, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Schmidt of Alliance, after an illness of several weeks.

Mrs. Reamsnider, widow of Frank, was born in Germany, Oct. 14, 1851. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Alex Schwab and Mrs. Elizabeth Lemley of Mansfield, and Mrs. Schmidt; three sons, Albert, Herman and August of Mansfield, 21 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 1 p. m. Monday with Rev. Herman Gilbert of St. Paul Lutheran church officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

Up and Down THE STREET

Although it's generally believed that a woman considers it a minor tragedy to find some one else wearing a hat or dress like hers, two courthouse employes didn't seem to mind at all when they came to work yesterday dressed alike. Laughing at the co-incidence, Miss Esther Barnett and Mrs. Mary Depler who work in adjoining offices in probate court, said their dresses were purchased in different stores. Neither knew until yesterday that she had duplicated the other's purchase.

Jimmy Lemley, blind proprietor of the confectionery stand at the courthouse, is still wondering about the man who rushed up to his stand to ask, "What days are the county commissioners out?" When told that they were away from the office Tuesdays and Saturday afternoons but that the visitor could see them now, he replied, "I don't want to see them now." At that, the questioner left as rapidly as he came, and Jimmie decided he wasn't looking for commissioners.

Lester D. Perry, R. D. 5, has a matter to settle with Jim Farley and his postoffice department. Perry was a recent visitor to Florida, and like most people who go on a long trip, he sent a number of cards to friends back home. The cards were mailed last Sunday and Perry arrived home yesterday, but after some questioning found that only a few of the cards had preceded him to Mansfield. Now he's wondering what happened to that sack of pistachio nuts he mailed the same time he did the cards. They haven't arrived, either.

The Missionary society of the Lexington Presbyterian church said it with money. Members read in The News-Journal the story of Michael Ondov, divinity school student from Wittenberg, who has been confined to General hospital since Nov. 5, in a paralytic condition as the result of an auto accident, and decided to do something about it. Their contribution will go toward a fund to aid him.

Not to be outdone by the various all-boy organizations that have been organized at John Simpson Junior high school in recent months, six girls at the school have organized the school's first all-girl dance orchestra. The group hopes to play for school functions in the near future.

SCHUSCHNIGG ORDERS CLOSE POLICE GUARD

Chancellor Determined on Showdown; Places Ban on All Demonstrations.

(By United Press)

VIENNA—Hans Schmid, pro-Nazi mayor of Graz, announced his resignation today in protest against the government ban on demonstrations.

Police prepared for a week-end of expected disorders at Graz, turbulent capital of pro-nazi Styria province and remained on the alert in Nazi Carinthia and other centers.

Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, determined to face a showdown with the Nazis, sent special instructions to police all over the country to enforce a ban against demonstrations or propaganda of any sort.

Schuschnigg, it was reported, sent an order to Schmid to take a "vacation" as the first move toward ousting him. Schmid, defiant, said to the United Press of his having given permission to Nazis to hold demonstrations.

"The population fully agreed with what I did. It would not be very clever to force my resignation."

Resigns In Protest.

But after this apparent implied threat, he said he would resign.

He said his resignation was to protest against what he considered the governments disavowal of his attempt to prevent serious riots.

It was understood, however, that he decided to resign because of the revelation that he had stored away for days a Nazi flag to fly on his city hall and that he had agreed to participate in a festival banquet of Nazis at the city hall restaurant last Thursday night.

There seemed every sign that Graz would be the scene of disorderly demonstrations over the week-end, and that there would be disorders in other places.

Schuschnigg seemed determined on a finish fight to exert his authority. Yesterday he addressed an emergency meeting of police heads from all over the country. He issued personal orders as regards enforcement of public safety measures.

Dr. Arthur Von Seyss-Inquart, Nazi minister of interior—who is also a devout Roman Catholic and an old, close friend of Schuschnigg—presided. With him was the executive police head, Dr. Michael Skubl, a strong Schuschnigg man. However, it was Schuschnigg himself who issued the orders, apparently to emphasize that as head of the government he is actually supreme executive leader of all departments.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Have you been missing those "three little words" in movie dialogue lately?

You have, and there's a reason. Screen dialogue writers will go to desperate lengths to avoid having characters say "I love you" in so many words. Most of them agree that tender passion makes the toughest dialogue.

Sam Heliman eschews "I love you" because it's "the hardest thing in the world to get an actress to say those three words convincingly." And if it is done convincingly you get a laugh.

Lamar Trotti concurs. Says he, "All scenes are hard to write and the love dialogue particularly so. Romantic scenes are difficult to keep within bounds. Unless you watch your step, they're apt to go sour, maudlin and overly sentimental. In 'In Old Chicago' the love dialogue between Alice Faye and Tyrone Power was much easier because we had the elements of antagonism and humor to set off the love interest."

Sonya Levien, who co-authored the screen play of "In Old Chicago" with Trotti, is of the same mind: "Personally, I find that more ingenuity and effort is required in writing these (love) scenes than in all others. Nowadays, the action may say 'I love you' but not the words."

Working on "State Fair," Miss Levien took more time on one love scene than on any other sequence in the film.

Richard Sherman dissents but slightly: "Any scene dealing with deep and profound emotion is difficult; and love, I find, is a harder to treat intelligently in writing than death, sudden disaster and other occurrences in life that shock and move the heart . . . They are all hard, in fact."

But Ernest Pascal insists the love stuff is easy if it is "honest and sincere. If the love scene or any other situation is synthetic and contrived, it is the most difficult to get down."

Morrie Ryskind ("Stage Door," "There's Always a Woman," etc.) concurs in spirit but won't take sides: "All scenes are tough. The next scene in the picture is always the toughest."

Sidney Buchman ("Vacation Bound") finds one scene like another—equally difficult "if conscientiously approached." The writer who finds a particular scene apparently easy to handle should examine it suspiciously for cliches, he declares.

Gladys Lehman opines that the most difficult thing is to get "effective naturalness" with the economy of wordage imposed by film technique—in a love scene or any other.

And John Lee Mahin holds that the best love scene is the one with the least dialogue.

"Dialogue," says Mahin, "is always dangerous in love scenes. The least lack of balance can betray a tender passage into raucous merriment."

The veteran H. J. Mankiewicz sums it up aptly:

"Love scenes are incredibly hard to dialogue—even when they're on the level—as when a boy is actually trying, in real life, to make love to some girl. And I don't know why art should be any easier than nature. The ability to carry off love scenes must carry with it the ability to believe yourself in love while you are writing. It's a quality that many an otherwise fine writer lacks."

It wouldn't be Hollywood if Nick Thompson who for 20 years has been playing movie Indians, really were an Indian. This is Hollywood. Nick's of Italian parentage, born in Houston, Texas.

NEW CHOIR TO OPEN VESPER SERIES SUNDAY

Ashland Sextet Assists First Congregational Group in Its Initial Program.

The first in a series of Sunday afternoon vesper services by the newly organized choir of the First Congregational church will be given at 4:30 p. m. Sunday at the church.

The new group is under the direction of A. LeMoine Derr, director of vocal and instrumental music at Hedges Junior high school, and will be assisted in its first concert by a sextet from Ashland who are students of Mr. Derr. The sextet will present two numbers.

Soloists to be heard during Sunday's services are Wanda Hess, Kathleen MacIntosh, Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine, Mrs. C. C. Walker, Mrs. J. C. Klinger, Marguerite Miller, Lawrence Bergstrom, and John Grabler.

Sigurd Jorgensen, director of instrumental music in the Mansfield public schools, will join in one anthem by the choir, playing a violin obbligato.

Varied Program.

The vesper program will include, organ prelude, "Vision" played by Miss Louise Krause; "The Lord Is My Light" by Oley Speaks, sung by the choir; "Invocation" by Rogers, the Ashland Sextet; "My Faith Looks Up to Thee" by Schnecker, the choir; "Music When Soft Voices Die" by Herts, the Hedges quartet; "Goin' Home" by Dvorak, vocal ensemble; "Open Our Eyes" by McFarlane, the choir; "Twenty-third Psalm" by Malotte, solo by Mrs. Hazeltine; "Hark, Hark My Soul" by Shelley, the choir; "Love Never Faileth" by Rott, solo by Mrs. Walker, and "Sanctus" by Gounod, the choir. For the postlude, Miss Krause will play "Toccata" by Dubois.

Other members of the choir are Mrs. J. H. Boyd, Eleanor and Dorothy Clingan, Hazel Hendershot, Katherine Huber, Mrs. Fred Jones, Gladys Kerr, Felice Walker Mrs. E. I. Bonar, Mrs. Ward Palmer, Mrs. A. L. Derr, Margaret Whitten, Mrs. M. C. Moffett, H. H. Clingan, Paul Davis, Fred Jones, William Lewis, Perry Millikin, William Mogg, Russell Tithers, and William Wampler.

At the morning church service at 10:45, the choir will sing "Inflammatus" from Rossini's Sabbot Mater. Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine will sing the solo. A quartet of younger singers will present "Supplication." Miss Krause will open the service by playing "Meditation" by Klein, and for the postlude she will play "Procession du St. Sacrement" by Chauvet.

Rev. Peter Young, pastor, will preach on the subject, "God and Evil."

LENTEN TALKS

Rev. Gilbert Begins Series of Sermons Tomorrow.

Rev. Herman L. Gilbert, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, will deliver a series of sermons on the general subject, "Christ's Message to You and Me," beginning at the 10:30 a. m. service Sunday.

Themes selected by Rev. Gilbert for the special series which will continue through Easter Sunday are: "My Picture of Jesus Christ," "How Christ's Ambitions Came True," "A Victory Won by Faith," "Christ Faces the Cowardly," "Forces That Brought Christ to the Cross," "Christ and Our Crosses," "Why Christ Chose You and Me," and "The Heart of Our Christian Faith."

Lenten services will begin at the church at 7:30 a. m. Ash Wednesday, when Holy Communion will be administered. Rev. Gilbert's subject will be, "Have Mercy Upon Me."

Lenten services will continue each Sunday at 7:30 p. m., beginning March 6, and concluding Easter Sunday evening.

PASTOR TO USE ILLUSTRATIONS

Rev. Wallick Opens Sermon Series Sunday Evening.

Rev. Iva L. Wallick, pastor of the Church of the Foursquare Gospel, will begin another series of illustrated sermons when he speakes on "Hickory Dickory Dock." Rev. Wallick will use a six-foot clock face in illustrating the sermon.

Musical numbers during the service will include a vocal solo by Rev. Wallick, "Be In Time;" an accordion solo, "Awake, Awake," played by Gerald Wallick, and a saxaphone trio composed of Karl Eberhardt, Gerald Wallick and Clifford Emerick, will play "Day By Day."

Twenty-five members of the Crusaders from the church are in Akron today attending the first 1938 Foursquare rally. Plans are being made for a mass rally of Crusaders from throughout the state to be held here in June.

CONVENE IN CITY

Leaders in Co-Operative Movement Meet at Central Church

An all-day conference in the interests of the co-operative movement will be held Monday at the Central Methodist church.

Principal speaker at the conference will be E. R. Bowen, general secretary of the Co-operative League of the United States. Bowen will speak in the morning, afternoon and evening. His morning subject will be "A Program for Peace and Plenty," and in the evening he will discuss "The Co-operative Movement in Action."

Rev. Paul Hollingshead, pastor of the church, is in charge of arrangements for the meeting.

SINGS AT TWO SERVICES

The Southland Singers will appear today and Sunday at the Church of God In Christ, 217 North Diamond street. The group will sing at 7:30 tonight and at 7:30 p. m. Sunday.

Returns to City

REV. D. R. FALKENBERG

SPEAKS SUNDAY AT 2 CHURCHES

Columbus Evangelist to Take Up Problem of Fascism And Communism.

Rev. D. R. Falkenberg of Columbus, executive president of business men's councils of the Pocket Testament League, Inc., will address meetings at two Mansfield churches Sunday.

At 2:30 p. m. he speaks at the First Brethren church, and at 7:30 p. m. at Grace Gospel Tabernacle, East Third street. His afternoon subject will be "Can The United States Avoid Either Communism or Fascism?" and in the evening he discusses "Among the CCC Camps."

Rev. Falkenberg is widely known in Mansfield, having appeared here on various occasions in the past. He broadcasts each Tuesday at 9 a. m. over station WHKC, Columbus, and teaches the weekly Bible Study class on the Ohio State university campus. He founded the mid-west councils of the Pocket Testament league in 1923, and has served as its executive ever since.

In 1933 Rev. Falkenberg launched the Pocket Testament League evangelism in the CCC camps in Ohio and a year later headed the work for five mid-western states.

GIVES RECITAL

St. John's Choir Appears at Galion Church Sunday.

St. John's Evangelical church choir of 30 voices, under the direction of John C. Klinger, will present a one-hour program at 7:30 p. m. Sunday at the Reformed church in Galion.

The program will include "Unto Thee O Lord" by Will M. S. Brown; "Open Our Eyes," by W. C. MacFarlane; "Testival Te Deum in D" by Dudley, Buck; "Let the Heavens Rejoice," by F. W. Peace; "Through the Day Thy Hath Brought Us," by Shelley.

A men's chorus from the choir will present "That Sweet Song," by Sargeant. Charles Gilbert will sing as a tenor solo, "The Lost Chord," by Sullivan; Mrs. Sophia Gregory presents "Pilgrims of the Night," by Hanscom as a contralto solo, and Emerson Bletz will sing "Just For Today," by Blanche Seaver, as a tenor solo. Rev. R. R. Elliker, pastor of the Galion church, will read the scripture.

During the 10 a. m. service at St. John's church Sunday, Mrs. Alva Fraley, a member of the choir, will sing "The Prayer Divine," by Ashford. Rev. Paul H. Saleste, pastor, preaches on the subject, "God Will, Will You?"

FIRST FOREMEN SCHOOL MONDAY

'Metal Finishing' To Be Topic of Session at C. of C.

The first of a series of three instruction schools sponsored by the Mansfield City Foremen's club will be held at 7:30 p. m. Monday in the Chamber of Commerce assembly room, C. F. Beddard, club president, said today.

A discussion on the topic "Metal Finishing" will be headed by Harold Farber, chief chemist at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant. The meetings, which will include round-table discussions, will be open to all Foremen club members in Mansfield and Shelby, Beddard said.

SCIENTIST TOPIC

"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

The Golden Text is: "We preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord; and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake" (II Corinthians 4:5).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. . . . In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you" (John 14: 1, 2).

MARKS VISITORS DAY TOMORROW

St. Matthew's Sunday School Arranges Special Program For Annual Observance.

The annual visitors day observance of Et. Matthew's Lutheran church will be held Sunday morning.

A special program will be given during the Sunday school hour at 9:30 a. m., with F. A. Voegele in charge. At the worship service at 10:30 a. m., Rev. Charles F. Sheriff will preach on the subject, "The Greatness of God."

Lenten services will begin at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday and continue each Wednesday during Lent. The theme for the Lenten series will be "The Church." Wednesday evening Rev. Sheriff will speak on "Jesus the Inspiration of the Church."

Five of the services in the series will be conducted by guest pastors. They are: March 9, Rev. H. R. Merle, Galion, "Her Origin"; March 16, Rev. F. W. Shirey, Shiloh, "Her History in America"; March 23, Rev. Carl M. Kessler, New Pittsburgh, "Her Distinctive Doctrines"; March 30, Rev. John E. Hoffer, Jeromesville, "Her Liturgy"; April 6, Rev. Simon A. Metzger, Crestline, "Her Responsibility."

Holy Week services will be conducted by Rev. Sheriff. His subjects will be, Wednesday, "The Attraction of the Cross," Holy Thursday, "Messages From the Cross," and Good Friday, "The Challenge of the Cross." Holy Communion will be administered on Good Friday.

Next Wednesday Rev. Sheriff will preach at the annual Ash Wednesday service at Hamma Divinity school, Wittenberg college.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PLANS CONTEST

Baptist Attendance Event to Begin March 6, Continues Through April 17.

The Sunday school of the Park Avenue Baptist church will conduct a weekly attendance contest beginning Sunday, March 6, and continuing through Easter Sunday, April 17.

A poster event will be conducted in conjunction with the contest and will be open to any member of the Sunday school.

Posters entered will be presented for judging at a covered-dish supper at the church Friday night, which will be a rally preceding the contest. The posters will be displayed during the Sunday school hour, March 6. Prizes will be awarded for the best posters.

Solo, choral and organ numbers will be presented during the worship service at 10:30 a. m. Sunday at the church. The choir under the direction of Lawrence S. Frank, minister of music, will sing "All Glory, Laud and Honor" by Teschner-Bach, and Frederick Jackson will sing a solo. Allitsen's "The Lord Is My Light and My Salvation."

Organ selections to be played by Mr. Frank include "Andante Cantabile" from the "Fifth Symphony," by Tschaikowsky, "Traumerie," by Schumann, and "Fugue in F," by Bach.

Institute Hears Prof Monday On Chinese Picture

The Chinese picture will be interpreted for a Mansfield audiance Monday night by Dr. Harry H. Love of Cornell university, who will be the fourth lecturer in the Institute of International Understanding sponsored by the Rotary and University clubs at Senior high school auditorium. He will speak at 8:15 p. m. on "The Rise of Nationalism In China."

On a three-year leave of absence from Cornell, Dr. Love made a close study of conditions in China, particularly as they pertain to the spread of nationalism and the growing ambition of modern Chinese youth. He formerly was adviser in agriculture and crop improvement to the ministry of industry of the national government of China.

Dr. Love is professor of agronomy at Cornell, located at Ithaca, N. Y., and has traveled extensively in the Far East. He was special lecturer on agricultural topics at the University of Nanking and the National Central University of China from 1931 to 1934.

The fifth and final lecture of the Institute will be given Tuesday night, March 8, at Senior high school. The speaker will be Allen D. Albert, American newspaper man, who will talk on "Can Any Nation Live Unto Itself."

SPEAKS AT SERVICE

Mrs. Evalyn Breece will be guest speaker Sunday at the Christian and Missionary Alliance, 226 North Diamond street. She will speak on the subject, "The Only True Love Story." The service begins at 3 p. m.

Conduct Evangelistic Services

REV. C. L. KERN

REV. E. M. SMITH

A series of evangelistic services will begin Monday evening at the South Main Street Evangelical church with Rev. C. L. Kern, pastor, delivering the sermons. Rev. and Mrs. E. M. Smith of Canton will have charge of he music at each service.

Sunday evening Rev. Kern will preach on "Acceptable Unto God." Services will be held each evening except Saturday at 7:30.

The third quarterly conference of the church will be held Friday, March 4, at 8 p. m. at the church. The delegates to the annual conference will be elected.

LENT TO BEGIN ON WEDNESDAY

Distribution of Ashes Marks Opening of Penitent Period In Catholic Church.

Christians throughout the world will begin the annual observance of Lent starting with Ash Wednesday services next week.

In the Catholic church, this 40-day period of fasting and penance will be opened by the placing of ashes in the form of a cross on the forehead of members as a sign of penitence. It is from this custom that the day received its name.

Ashes will be distributed at St. Peter's Catholic church both at the masses Wednesday morning and at the evening service at 7:30.

Lenten services will be held each Wednesday and Friday evening at 7:30 until Easter at St. Peter's. The annual Lenten regulations sent to each Catholic pastor in the diocese by the Most Rev. Karl J. Alter, bishop of Toledo, will be read at all the masses tomorrow.

Lenten services also will open at St. John's Evangelical, St. Matthew's and St. Paul Lutheran churches at 7:30 p. m. Ash Wednesday.

St. John's and St. Paul churches will conduct services each Wednesday evening during Lent while services at St. Matthew's will be held Sunday nights.

If Marriage Fails Wife Should Leave

By VIRGINIA LEE

BROKEN HEARTED: If you have tried and tried to get along with your husband all to no purpose, maybe the answer is to leave him and go on your own. The money you have tied up in home and furniture is not worth the unhappiness you are enduring.

It is horrible to live with a person, be with him day after day, when you hate each other and have no tastes in common. You can always make your own living, and maybe you could find peace in a little home of your own making. I am strong, as you know from reading this column, for couples to do everything within their power to make a success of their marriages. But when everything fails and the two are miserable in each other's company, I believe it is better to separate.

Of course, in a case like yours, there always is a tendency to exaggerate the husband's faults, because you have another man's image in your heart. But quite aside from that, you seem to have made an earnest effort to make a success of your marriage, and maybe you have earned the right to step out and see whether you will be happier. You cannot be your true self with a person who dislikes and belittles you. Do let me know what you do and how you make out. If, as you seem to suggest, there is something mentally wrong with your husband, I suppose you couldn't get him to see a doctor?

WONDERING is a happily married young woman. She has a friend, also married, who was "wild" before she married, but seems to have settled down now, although an occasional remark makes Wondering wonder. Friends tell Wondering that she wouldn't make a friend of this young woman. Her husband says it is up to her. What to do?

It may be that if you keep up your friendship with this woman, Wondering, you can win her over entirely and she always will be a fine character. If you stop she may decide, "what's the use?" and slide back into her old ways.

Why don't you disregard what "they" say and remain friends as long as your husband does not object. Try to show her—unobtrusively, of course, that she can be happier living as she now is than with her "wilder" friends.

"DEAR MISS LEE: would you please settle the following question in your column: How old must both a girl and boy be in New York state in order to obtain a marriage license without parents' consent?

"JENNIE."

The man must be 21 and the woman 18, Jennie.

THEATER

WALTER WANGER has announced eight pictures to be made before the end of the year, and it is interesting to note that John Cromwell, ace director, is back of the megaphone again after his brief flyer in the legitimate theater. Cromwell left the film capital last fall to stage the Fredric March theatrical venture which fared so badly. He will direct Charles Boyer in "Algiers," which deals with the exciting adventures of Pepe le Moko romantic crook. A second Boyer production will be "The Illusionist." Joan Bennett is to be starred in the filming of Vincent Sheehan's "Personal History," which created something of a furore when it was first published. Another Wanger production will be "The River Is Blue," a colorful spy drama, co-starring Madeliene Carroll, the English star, and Henry Fonda.

"Yank at Oxford."

When Robert Taylor went to England several months ago it was to make scenes in the American-English film, "A Yank at Oxford," and that picture will be the Ohio attraction for the first of the week, starting with a midnight show tonight. Maureen O'Sullivan and Lionel Barrymore are featured in Taylor's support. Authentic scenes of the greatest river event in the world, the Oxford-Cambridge crew race, are pictured as the M-G-M cameraman filmed them. The story concerns a middle western college athlete who wins a scholarship to Oxford, and whose cockiness almost ruins his standing. The quaint customs of the old English university are carried out in the picture. A number of the players in the supporting cast, especially in the English scenes, are English.

"Mannequin."

"Little Women."

One of the most popular pictures ever screened was "Little Women" with Katharine Hepburne, Joan Bennett and Frances Dee. The picture has been reissued and is offered at the Majestic Sunday and Monday. The film version of Louisa May Olcott's beloved story of Meg and Jo and their sisters closely follow the book. Douglas Montgomery brings romance into the story. "Who Killed Gail Preston?" also offered, is a mystery murder story in which an actress is murdered on the stage when there is a bright spotlight on her. Don Terry plays the police inspector who solves the mystery.

"The Awful Truth."

The picture which makes Irene Dunne one of the candidates for the Academy choice for the best performance by an actress last year, is "The Awful Truth," a roaring comedy, in which Miss Dunne and Gary Grant are married, divorced and almost married to other mates in a succession of misunderstandings. The only reason their second marriages are disrupted is because each of them appear at the psychological moment to cramp the other's romance. Ralph Bellamy gives a rib-tickling performance as the big, dumb mama's boy from the middle west and Cecil Cunningham is a comforting Aunt Patsy.

For Covering Up, or For Gay Frivolity Make This Apron.

By MARIAN MARTIN

For "public appearances" when you have company, make up this apron (from Pattern 9462) with a shaped yoke and dainty ruffle trim. Choose light, dainty fabrics like lawn, dotted swiss or dimity. And if you want a kitchen helper . . . one that can stand the hustle and bustle of every day life, use sturdy cotton with a small dot that won't soil easily, or use a serviceable checked gingham. Edge the entire top and the pockets with black ric-rac. This neat-looking apron, generously cut at the bottom for plenty of protection, will serve you well. Complete Marian Martin Diagrammed Sew Chart is included.

Pattern 9462 may be ordered only in sizes small, medium and large. Small size requires 2⅝ yards 36 inch fabric and 2½ yards ruffling for printed version; 2 yards 36 inch fabric, and 3⅞ yards ric-rac for plain version.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"No! No! Mary is all right, Noel! Nothing has happened. Here! She'll speak to you herself. But as soon as you've finished talking, ask your father to come to the phone. Is he there?"

"Right next door," Noel answered in a voice so transformed with relief and happiness that it was hard to recognize it as the totured one which had come to my ears but a second or two before. "I'll call him as soon as I get through talking to Mary."

"She's right here," I said, surrendering the telephone to Mary, who, at my utterance of her husband's name, had dashed to my side, struggling with the impulse to snatch the telephone from my hands.

"Oh! Noel Darling!" Mary's voice was a lilting carol. "It's so wonderful to be able to talk to you. And your roses were too, too marvelous! Of course I did, you silly boy! Tell me—"

Others Had Left.

I looked around, a bit embarrassed at the tender colloquy which I knew was coming, but found that I was the only listener left. With the tact inseparable from their respective professions, Miss Whitlock and Mr. Milner had unobtrusively slipped from the bedroom, where the telephone was situated, into the living room, and had closed the door after them. I would have followed their example, but I knew that I must cut the colloquy short. I did not believe that Noel had told his father about delaying his mandatory journey back in order to see that Mary had a welcome to the hotel of her own special roses. I could imagine Philip Veritzen's wrath if he should chance to learn of what he would term a flagrant violation of orders. So, with the determination to forestall such a contretemps, I touched Mary upon the shoulder and spoke softly but compellingly:

"Mary Darling, you must stop talking to Noel now, and let me take your place at the telephone. Your father-in-law must not learn about the roses. Besides, I must talk to him as soon as possible."

Mary nodded a mute assent and reluctantly transmitted my dictum to her husband.

Veritzen Interrupts.

"Sorry, Darling, but Auntie Madge says I have to sign off. She must talk to your father—I don't know why—oh-h!"

She held out the receiver toward me with a panicky little movement.

"Quick!" she whispered. "I heard his voice."

I did not need the ambiguous pronoun explained. I knew even before I heard the unctuous inflections sounding my name that Philip Veritzen himself was on the other end of the wire.

"My dear Mrs. Graham!" he was saying. "What a delightful surprise to hear your voice! And what can I do for you?"

He had not overheard anything about the roses. I was certain of that from his tone, and it was with an easing of nerve tension, which made for better efficiency in my attack, that I unleashed the opening guns of my barrage.

"I'll tell you presently," I said. "But first I must convey to you my utter delight and gratitude for the wonderful quarters you have given us, and in the exquisitely lovely welcome of rare blossoms which your thoughtfulness has provided. Mary is right beside me, anxious to thank you also."

"I'm sorry," Philip Veritzen replied, hastily, for him, "but I have an appointment, and must dash away. Please assure the dear child that I am glad she was pleased, and tell me as quickly as possible what it is you wish of me."

Attention For Eyes Should Become Habit

By JULIET SHELBY
Central Press Writer on Beauty

Idealize your eyes! With a little attention they will serve you well. Not only is it terribly important in this age of haste and efficiency to have your eyes feeling their best, but if they are healthy and clear they will be beautiful and sparkling.

Through the ages men have sung praises to the eyes of their ladies, and the modern male is no exception. So to be alluring to the opposite sex it's just about compulsory to have your eyes the focal point of your personality. Without their aid Cupid would be playing a losing game.

Caring for the eyes as a part of the morning and nightly routine will be an easy habit to form and won't really slow you up at all. Bathe the eyes in the morning before washing your face. You'll be pleased at how this will wake you up and make you feel ready for the day's adventures. Then cleanse them again before going to bed to remove all the dirt and dust.

Use an eye cup or an eye dropper and a soothing and refreshing eye lotion. There are lots of good lotions on the market now, but if you prefer to make your own, here is a good old standby. Make a solution of boric acid. For the best result this should be made fresh every day. Take a teaspoon of boric acid powder or crystals and dissolve them in a glassful of boiled water. Let the solution cool before using it.

Medicated eye pads, or herbal eye pads, are very good if your eyes feel tired after a busy day. If you buy the prepared kind you can just saturate them in cold water and place them over your eyes for a few minutes, while you are resting. They are dandy little revivers. If you are beginning to worry about small laugh lines or wrinkles around your eyes, it's a good idea to use a rich lubricating cream around the eyes, too. This should be applied before you put the pads on.

Skin Is Sensitive.

The skin in this area is very thin and sensitive and is more inclined to line than on other parts of the face. Also the eyes show every emotion and expression, and naturally this is the first place where the wear and tear of our joys and griefs are etched. Gently smooth the cream into the skin, starting on the upper lid at the bridge of the nose and working around and down, back to the bridge of the nose.

A good way to rest the eyes if you are spending lots of time on close work such as sewing, writing or reading, is to look up about every half an hour and focus your eyes on some point in the distance. Gaze at it for a moment with both eyes, then close one, look at the given point, then close the other and do it again.

A "Roller Coaster" Hair Style

Among the newer hair styles being shown is the one shown above wihch is called "roller coaster." Here the hair is brushed into a sleek roll, high on one side and graduated down behind the ear on the other side, to give the effect of an extreme swirl. A rhinestone bird set in the hair adds a chic touch.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

MAKE A DETOUR

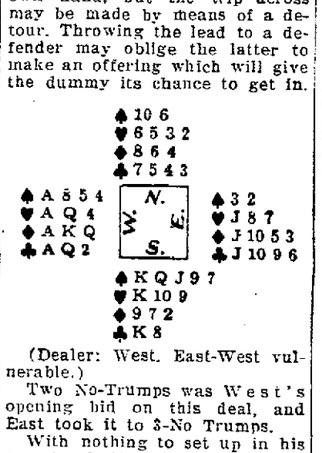
Many a declarer sees no likely way to get the lead into the dummy, where it is needed in order to have a chance for his contract. In some of these spots there may be no direct entry there from his own hand, but the trip across may be made by means of a detour. Throwing the lead to a defender may oblige the latter to make an offering which will give the dummy its chance to get in.



(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

Two No-Trumps was West's opening bid on this deal, and East took it to 3-No Trumps.

With nothing to set up in his own hand, North elected to lead the spade 10. South covered this with the J and continued the suit for two more rounds, when West went in with the A. His next three plays were the diamonds A, K and Q.

The question now was which suit to choose, as between hearts and clubs, so he selected the clubs. He played the A and then the Q which South won. South then cashed his remaining spades, and set the contract one trick.

West had a chance to force South to lead to his tenaces. It was apparent from North's lead that he held nothing of value, so West's best chance was to have given South the two spade tricks and make him lead into the hearts or clubs. On the last spade the heart Q should have been tossed, to gain an entry to the dummy.

What is the correct bidding on this deal?

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Feb. 27.

Sunday's horoscope is a rather conflicting one, except for the affairs of church and clergy. Even these may have rather sudden visitations with surprise movements, change or journeys.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a surprise change in the affairs, with strange persons or places influential in making decisions. But be careful as to confused issues, although it is safe to deal with superiors and those in authority, asking favors, advancement or other marks of preferment.

A child born on this day may be studious aud serious, although fond of change, travel and unusual experiences. Its natural tendency to adventure, science and strange places and persons may wean it from attention to practical ways and means.

For Monday, Feb. 28.

Monday's astrological forecast is a very fortuitious one, with signs of much enterprise and initiative, and much determination to put over large projects and attain high goals. In this the support of powerful friends, corporations, secret societies or political organizations may be counted on.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a very enterprising year, with much progress, advancement and increase of finance and business prestige. There will be much friendly co-operation from large organizations in industry, finance, political, secret or social bodies, all with pleasant and profitable reaction on the private, social and possibly romantic affiliations.

A child born on this day may be efficient, enterprising,. aggressive and ambitious, attracting the friendly support of those in very influential positions, either in politics, society, finance or big business.

Household Hints

Menu Hint

Hot Tomato Soup Crackers
Banana Salmon Salad
Creamed Potatoes
Canned Peas Lemon Pie

Here is a new combination for a salmon salad, and it is well worth trying and keping in your files for Lent, when you will need to vary the many fish recipes. This recipe is recommended for parties, too.

Today's Recipes.

Banana Salmon Salad—Three ripe bananas, diced; one-half cup diced canned pineapple (about two slices), one and one-half cups canned salmon, one-fourth cup diced celery, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon chopped pickle, mayonnaise to moisten, lemon. Mix bananas and pineapple together. (Pineapple keeps bananas light in color.) Add salmon from which bones and skin have been removed. Stir in remaining ingredients. Garnish with crisp lettuce or other greens, and lemon slices. Six to eight servings.

Lemon Pie—One pint water, one cup sugar, one tablespoon cornstarch, one tablespoon flour, one teaspoon butter, two egg yolks, one and one-half lemons. Cook together in double boiler until thick and smooth, stirring constantly. Bake a rich crust, fill with cooked mixture and cover top with meringue made of the two egg whites beaten stiff, with two tablespoons sugar. Put into slow oven to brown the meringue.

Favorite Sandwich.

One of Barbara Stanwyck's favorite sandwiches consists of the following mixture spread between thin brown bread: one cup of grated cheese, mixed with a tablespoon of milk, one teaspoon of anchovy paste and a dash of paprika.

If you will roll nut meats in flour before adding to the cake mixture, nuts will not fall to bottom of cake. This should also be done when raisins are used in cakes.
